Mohammedan Forces Cross Transjordanian Frontier; Motor Route Suspended

(By United Press)

LONDON, March 8.—Small detachments of Sultan Ibn Saud's Mohammedan Fundamentalist tribesmen have crossed the Trans-jordanian frontier and captured several villages, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Basra reported today.

The dispatch quoted information received from British sources.

It was added that 10 British armored motor cars, 10 airplanes and a number of transport motor cars were stationed outside the walls of Kuwait, awaiting an attack. Marines and sailors from the British cruiser Emerald were patrolling the streets, it was said. The overland motor route, between Bagdad and Damascus, was suspended temporarily.

CAIRO, March 8.—Twenty-six persons were taken to hospitals today after clashes between school boys and police during demonstrations against the proposed British Egyptian treaty.

NEW FARM RELIEF MEASURE REPORTED

WASHINGTON, March 8.—A new McNary farm relief bill, intended to meet the objections of President Coolidge against the McNary-Haugen bill, was reported favorably today by the senate agriculture committee.

The measure substitutes a loan system for the equalization fee, which Mr. Coolidge found objectionable last year. The new bill proposes two remedies for agriculture depression—marketing agreements and loans to co-operate associations at low interest.

MOTHER WILL LET DAUGHTER WHIP HER IF COURT ASSERTS GIRL'S SPANKING WAS WRONG

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 8.—A thrill-hungry public here today played with the idea of a new kind of sensation—the spectacle of a flapper daughter administering a beating to her own mother. Although it was doubtful if the whipping actually would be staged in public, if at all, certain aspects of the strife between the mother and daughter gripped the public's imagination.

The mother, Mrs. Charles Woodside, a quarterblood Indian, frail to look at but with black, flashing eyes, which bespeak her Indian ancestry, was arrested on a warrant sworn to by her 16-year-old daughter, Lorraine, a student in high school.

British Girl Delays Hop To America

(By United Press)

CRANWELL, AIRDROME, LONDON, March 8.—Cranwell flying field officials told the United Press today that the start of a proposed transatlantic flight attempt by the Hon. Elsie Mackay and Capt. W. R. Hinchcliffe was indefinite and that Hinchcliffe had gone to London.

The reason for the delay was unknown, officials said. Miss Mackay, adventurous and accomplished daughter of Lord Inchcape, multimillionaire ship owner, and Captain Hinchcliffe had been waiting here to make the first 1928 attempt to fly between Europe and America.

Their Stinson monoplane, "Adventure," had been prepared secretly for the flight. Both were optimistic in the face of odds that most experts called hopeless. No airplane has made the westward North Atlantic flight.

SHUTDOWN OF VENTURA FIELD BRANDED FALSE

Oil Production Will Be Decreased But Will Not Cut Employment

(By United Press)

VENTURA, Calif., March 8.—Complete shutdown of the Ventura oil field, announced in Sacramento, was branded untrue today by Ralph B. Lloyd, one of the largest leaseholders in the affected area, in a telephone statement to the Ventura County Star.

"Oil production will be decreased by only 10,000 barrels per day in this field," Lloyd said. "This will place the production on a basis of approximately 44,200."

Aimed at Gas Wastage

"The conservation program is aimed specifically at wastage of gas. Wells will be nozzled down to increase gas pressure and avoid wastage, which will save roughly 65,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily," Lloyd said.

Lloyd issued the statement after a consultation in Los Angeles with the Associated and Shell Oil companies, principal operators in the Ventura field.

He branded the report obviously erroneous, particularly in regard to the amount of oil which would be shut off by such action.

Hoover Club Is Organized In Santa Ana

Judge Williams' Candidacy For Convention Delegate Indorsed

BULLETIN

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 8.—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover will enter the Indiana primaries as candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, Oscar G. Foellinger, Hoover backer, said this afternoon.

INDORSING the candidacy of Judge R. Y. Williams for delegate from the eleventh district to the Republican national convention, Santa Ana leaders of that party gathered last night in the city hall and founded a Santa Ana Hoover-for-President club.

Judge Frank C. Drumm today holds the position of chairman of the new organization, with W. F. Menton as vice chairman. Earl Abbey has stepped into the position of secretary.

Dr. R. A. Cushman, chairman of the Republican central committee, opened the meeting and called for nominations.

After taking the chair, Drumm selected an executive committee, which will arrange for an Orange county Hoover banquet, at which it is hoped to fuse the Republican forces into a movement which will give the commerce secretary the united Republican support of this section.

Voters Must Register

Attention was called to the necessity for immediate registration of voters. "Although there are many Hoover boosters in the county, they cannot be of assistance in the primaries unless they have registered," Drumm pointed out.

A membership roll will be prepared and circulated in order that those who wish to back Hoover may join the club.

Reeves Aylmore, associate of L. A. West, Santa Ana attorney, who recently completed a tour of the United States, gave his opinion of the Hoover situation throughout the country. He declared that, while there is overwhelming Hoover sentiment in most states, a determined effort must be made to make this sentiment effective at the convention. Especially in states where the direct primary

CANTILLON PLEADS FOR HICKMAN'S LIFE

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—Making a plea for the "life of a man who already is legally dead," Attorney Richard Cantillon opened the final arguments for the defense at the Toms murder trial today.

He made a plea against the "barbaric" attitude that would "hang William Edward Hickman a second time to appease the hate of the people."

Cantillon demanded a life imprisonment sentence for "The Fox," declaring that if he was guilty then Velby Hunt, his co-defendant, was guilty also, and both should be punished equally.

Kellogg Starts Negotiations For Pact With Italy

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Negotiations for an arbitration treaty with Italy were begun here today by Secretary Kellogg and Ambassador De Martino when a draft of the proposed treaty was sent to the Italian embassy. This action followed a long conference this morning between Kellogg and De Martino.

It was understood that the draft closely followed the language and form of the treaty recently signed with France. Reference was made to conciliation in the first article while the third article was believed to contain the four exceptions to arbitration that were made in the French pact.

EVERY CITY OF 50,000 WILL GET AIR MAIL

Program for Extension of Service Revealed by Postal Head

By JOSEPH WASNEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The post-office department has adopted a program designed to give every city in the United States with a population of 50,000 or more air mail service within 10 years.

C. C. Gove, deputy second assistant postmaster general, said today 18 air mail routes now are in operation, seven routes are under contract and three routes have been advertised.

The routes operated cover 8044 miles, or a total flying distance of 17,444 miles daily. The routes under contract, which will start operations before July 1, cover 3656 miles, over which mail planes will make daily round trips.

The three new routes now being advertised probably will start service late this summer and cover 1599 miles, over which daily round trip service is authorized.

"Practically every big city in the country is served by air mail," Gove said.

"The new routes will include many planes and generally speed up service over the entire country."

"By 1929 there will be air mail service daily over about 30,000 flying miles. This service will expand as business grows and within the next 10 years the air mail net will extend to every city with a population of 50,000 inhabitants or more."

GIRLS ADMIT THEY TOOK SLEEP DRUG

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—Two high school girls, who told police they had been kidnapped and drugged by two men, admitted to investigators today that the story was false and that they had taken sleeping tablets for a thrill.

Admission that their first story was false was made by Naomi Matthews, 16, and Beverline Manis, 16, when Police Officer Chase reported to headquarters that he had encountered the girls with two other girls and a boy last night.

Believing them to be in an intoxicated condition, he released them after they had promised to go home.

Labor Opposes Reformers At London Polls

341 Candidates Await Decision of Voters in City Elections

(By United Press)

LONDON, March 8.—London's municipal elections, with their platform of Labor and anti-Labor, opened here today.

There are 124 councillors to be elected, two for each of 60 constituencies and four for the city of London itself. At the present the composition of the council is as follows:

Municipal Reformers 84; Labor 34; Liberals 6.

A total of 341 candidates awaited the voters' decision. The field included 124 Municipal Reformers, 108 Laborites, 82 Liberals and 27 Independents and Communists.

Sixty-five women were among the candidates, most of them Municipal reformers or Laborites.

City Elections Important

While these elections in no way approach the importance of the national elections, this year's elections in London are important from the viewpoint of the Labor and anti-Labor platform, on which the elections are being fought. No single policy of any party can be said to be of as vital importance as the anti-Labor fight, which both the Reform party and the Liberals are waging to keep the Laborites from increasing their power in the city of London.

The recently issued manifesto of the Reform party can be taken as a criterion of their anti-Laborite efforts.

This manifesto was issued immediately following a Laborite declaration of its policy to increase its representation on the council at today's elections.

The declaration of the Labor party that it seeks to capture the government of London for the purpose of establishing Socialism makes the chief issue in the elections—Is London to be governed on Socialist lines, or is the continued, economical and efficient policy of the Municipal Reform party to prevail? The Reform manifesto declared:

"We are opposed to Socialist proposals in municipal government whether they come from the Labor party or the Liberal party."

It is contended that the success of the Reform party at the elections would offer no security against a Socialist policy.

No Local Pacts

One noteworthy fact in today's elections is that there are no local pacts between the Reformers and Liberals to support a single Blodgett had succeeded in proving the priest guilty of first degree murder. The jury recommended a life sentence, after which the court set the date for pronouncing judgment.

The trial ended and the jury retired at 11:20 yesterday morning. At 2:20 p. m., it returned for additional instructions.

"Would the court override a recommendation of life imprisonment if they found Goodwin guilty?" the jurors wished to know. Judge Marks read the instructions.

COMPROMISE QUOTA BILL IS DISCUSSED

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Legislation further restricting Mexican immigration was discussed as a compromise for the Box bill at a lengthy executive session of the house immigration committee today.

The committee appeared opposed to a favorable report for the Box bill, which would place all other western hemisphere countries on the quota basis, but a strong sentiment showed itself for enacting further restrictions.

This may take the form of restrictions upon Mexican Indians and other Mexicans of mixed blood, many of whom now enter the United States.

Special Channel Open To Amateur Radio Operators

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The federal radio commission today opened to amateur radio operators a special air channel—the band between 30,000 and 28,000 kilocycle or 9.99 and 10.71 meters.

It also directed that amateur stations are not to broadcast news, sermons, lectures, music or other entertainment. The order will affect some newspapers now using amateur wave lengths to broadcast news bulletins.

An amateur station was defined as one "operated by a person interested in radio technique solely with a personal aim and without pecuniary interests."

Alabaman Says Legislature Should Know About Distribution

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon denied in a letter read to the senate today by Senator Smoot that William Randolph Hearst, publisher, has received any tax refunds since Mellon took office.

Senator Heflin had demanded information concerning refunds of $600,000 which Heflin understood were paid to Hearst newspapers. Mellon charged in his letter that he had given Heflin the desired information previously, but that Heflin never had made it public.

Heflin denied receiving the letter.

"I am going to ask for more detailed information," Heflin told Smoot. "Secretary Mellon has paid out more than $1,000,000,000 in tax refunds and the senate should know more about the distribution of this money."

Guest was found in a hotel room shot through the heart. The letters did not reveal the name of the woman with whom Guest was in love, but warned the sisters that they would hear from her and not to reveal her name, as she was married.

In the letter addressed to Mrs. Curtis Barlow Jr., Guest wrote: "I know for years if I ever found one that I truly loved that I would not be able to live without her. Well, I found such a one here in Los Angeles after 14 years' travelling, and to think she had to be married when I found her."

FIVE INVENTIONS PATENTED IN LAST 68 YEARS ARE CLAIMED TO EXTRACT POWER FROM AIR

By CECIL OWEN

United Press Staff Correspondent

Copyright, 1928, by United Press

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Five patents on inventions, believed to embody a principle similar to that of the so-called "fuelless motor," recently credited to Lester J. Hendershot, of Pittsburgh, have been granted by the U. S. patent office, the United Press learned today.

All five of the inventions, two dating back to the last century, depend for their power on electricity extracted from the air of the earth and each professes to operate without fuel or batteries.

Experts at the patent office believe the devices to be commercially valuable and impracticable.

Patents could not be obtained on them today, as inventors are now required to demonstrate the feasibility as well as the novelty of their brain children.

The first apparatus of this type was patented a year before the Civil War, 1860, by H. C. Vion, a resident of Paris, who wanted to protect his invention in this country.

Vion's idea was to extract electricity from the clouds and also from the earth, by means of a captive balloon and a wire conductor. Positive electricity from the atmosphere was to be united with negative currents from the ground in Vion's apparatus. "Thus forming an electrical pile of considerable power."

This invention was improved upon by a Philadelphian, William L. Penneck, who, in 1903, obtained a patent on a similar device to capture electricity from the clouds and carry it through wires to an "energy accumulator." Penneck later took out a second patent, covering a

Financial Details Related By Hays Not Confirmed By Committee's Records

PATTEN BOUGHT BONDS

Transaction on Republican Ledger as Contribution From Wealthy Chicagoan

BY PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Harry F. Sinclair contribution of $160,000 in Liberty bonds does not show on the books of the Republican national committee, William V. Hodges, committee treasurer, revealed to the senate Teapot Dome committee today.

None of the intricate financial details related by Will H. Hays, the former chairman of the committee, who obtained the contributions from the oil magnate, could be confirmed by the national committee records, Hodges showed.

Cash Contribution

The transaction was shown on the Republican books as a cash contribution from Patten.

Hodges' records of Fred Upham's books did not show either a $50,000 contribution which Hays said was given by the late John T. Pratt, of New York.

Only a $20,000 contribution from Sinclair in 1919 was recorded on the books and another of $1000 from Mrs. H. F. Sinclair in 1920.

One way in which recording of the contribution may have been avoided was related by James A. Patten, Chicago wheat king.

Patten testified that the late Fred Upham, then treasurer of the Republican committee, had induced him to take $25,000 of this Sinclair bonds and pay cash to the committee.

Told of Deficit

"Upham, about Dec. 5, 1923, told me the Republican committee had a deficit of several hundred thousand dollars," Patten testified. "He said he had $25,000 of government bonds he would give me if I would put up $25,000."

These bonds were in the lot of $60,000 sent Upham by Will H. Hays, former chairman of the Republican national committee. Hays got them, with $125,000 more, from Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, who leased the Teapot Dome naval reserve from former Secretary of Interior Fall.

"I gave Upham the $25,000 and I got the Liberty bonds," Patten

PHOENIX FIRE DOES $150,000 DAMAGE

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 8.—After an all night battle, in which all available fire apparatus participated, fire, which swept through several buildings in the heart of the business district, was brought under control today.

Leon Keefe, fireman, suffered a badly lacerated hand when he was caught in a shower of falling glass. Lt. C. C. Brown was overcome by ammonia fumes while fighting the blaze in the basement of the confectionery company, but was revived.

Labor Opposes Reformers At London Polls

341 Candidates Await Decision of Voters in City Elections

(By United Press)

LONDON, March 8.—London's municipal elections, with their platform of Labor and anti-Labor, opened here today.

There are 124 councillors to be elected, two for each of 60 constituencies and four for the city of London itself. At the present the composition of the council is as follows:

Municipal Reformers 84; Labor 34; Liberals 6.

A total of 341 candidates awaited the voters' decision. The field included 124 Municipal Reformers, 108 Laborites, 82 Liberals and 27 Independents and Communists. Sixty-five women were among the candidates, most of them Municipal reformers or Laborites.

City Elections Important

While these elections in no way approach the importance of the national elections, this year's elections in London are important from the viewpoint of the Labor and anti-Labor platform, on which the elections are being fought. PRIEST GUILTY; LIFE SENTENCE RECOMMENDED

Goodwin Jury Is Out Over Five Hours; Will Hear Fate Tomorrow

A T 3 P. M. TOMORROW, Superior Judge E. J. Marks will sentence the Rev. Philip A. Goodwin for the murder of Joseph J. Patterson, Los Angeles broker.

At 4:40 p. m. yesterday, a jury returned the verdict which meant that District Attorney Z. B. West Jr., and Chief Deputy District Attorney L. W. Blodgett had succeeded in proving the priest guilty of first degree murder. The jury recommended a life sentence, after which the court set the date for pronouncing judgment.

The trial ended and the jury retired at 11:20 yesterday morning. At 2:20 p. m., it returned for additional instructions.

"Would the court override a recommendation of life imprisonment if they found Goodwin guilty?" the jurors wished to know. Judge Marks read the instructions.

FINANCIAL DETAILS RELATED BY HAYS NOT CONFIRMED BY COMMITTEE'S RECORDS

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Harry F. Sinclair contribution of $150,000 in Liberty bonds does not show on the books of the Republican national committee, William V. Hodges, committee treasurer, revealed to the senate Teapot Dome committee today.

None of the intricate financial details related by Will H. Hays, the former chairman of the committee, who obtained the contributions from the oil magnate, could be confirmed by the national committee records, Hodges showed.

Cash Contribution

The transaction was shown on the Republican books as a cash contribution from Patten.

Hodges' records of Fred Upham's books did not show either a $50,000 contribution which Hays said was given by the late John T. Pratt, of New York.

Only a $20,000 contribution from Sinclair in 1919 was recorded on the books and another of $1000 from Mrs. H. F. Sinclair in 1920.

One way in which recording of the contribution may have been avoided was related by James A. Patten, Chicago wheat king.

Patten testified that the late Fred Upham, then treasurer of the Republican committee, had induced him to take $25,000 of this Sinclair bonds and pay cash to the committee.

Told of Deficit

"Upham, about Dec. 5, 1923, told me the Republican committee had a deficit of several hundred thousand dollars," Patten testified. "He said he had $25,000 of government bonds he would give me if I would put up $25,000."

These bonds were in the lot of $60,000 sent Upham by Will H. Hays, former chairman of the Republican national committee. Hays got them, with $125,000 more, from Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, who leased the Teapot Dome naval reserve from former Secretary of Interior Fall.

"I gave Upham the $25,000 and I got the Liberty bonds," Patten

PHOENIX FIRE DOES $150,000 DAMAGE

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 8.—After an night battle, in which all available fire apparatus participated, fire, which swept through several buildings in the heart of the business district, was brought under control today.

The blaze caused estimated damage of $150,000 to the Donofrio confectionery building and the Hubbard and Talbot Hardware company. The Knights of Pythias hall was threatened with destruction for a time, but the damage was confined to that caused by water.

Leon Keefe, fireman, suffered a badly lacerated hand when he was caught in a shower of falling glass. Lt. C. C. Brown was overcome by ammonia fumes while fighting the blaze in the basement of the confectionery company, but was revived.

FIVE INVENTIONS PATENTED IN LAST 68 YEARS ARE CLAIMED TO EXTRACT POWER FROM AIR

By CECIL OWEN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Copyright, 1928, by United Press

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Five patents on inventions, believed to embody a principle similar to that of the so-called "fuelless motor," recently credited to Lester J. Hendershot, of Pittsburgh, have been granted by the U. S. patent office, the United Press learned today.

All five of the inventions, two dating back to the last century, depend for their power on electricity extracted from the air of the earth and each professes to operate without fuel or batteries.

Experts at the patent office believe the devices to be commercially valueless and impracticable.

Patents could not be obtained on them today, as inventors are now required to demonstrate the feasibility as well as the novelty of their brain children.

The first apparatus of this type was patented a year before the Civil war, 1860, by H. C. Vion, a resident of Paris, who wanted to protect his invention in this country.

Vion's idea was to extract electricity from the clouds and also from the earth, by means of a captive balloon and a wire conductor. Positive electricity from the atmosphere was to be united with negative currents from the ground in Vion's apparatus, "thus forming an electrical pile of considerable power."

This invention was improved upon by a Philadelphia, William L. Pennock, who, in 1908, obtained a patent on a similar device to capture electricity from the clouds and carry it through wires to an "energy accumulator." Pennock later took out a second patent, covering a modified apparatus based on the same principle.

FIVE INVENTORS CLAIM TO USE CURRENT IN AIR

By his invention, Penneck asserted he could transform the electricity ordinarily dissipated as lightning into usable power. He proposed to do this by transmitting the energy from the rare upper strata of the atmosphere to the earth's surface, where it was to be stored for use.

Another method of extracting electricity from the air was patented in 1901, by A. Palenscar, of Budapest, Hungary, who proposed to release energy by condensing water droplets in the air.

He submitted sketches of an elaborate arrangement to "step down" the power thus generated.

One of the most complicated schemes was patented in 1872 by William H. Ward, of Auburn, N. Y., who proposed a plan whereby electricity in the air was to be projected from one tall tower to another.

These towers were supposed to draw the electricity from the surrounding atmosphere and then release it in the direction of the prevailing winds which were to carry the energy to other towers, thus setting up a system of electrical communication distinctly akin to modern radio.

"Such inventions, which depend on atmosphere electricity for their power, are commercially worthless because they cannot be relied upon to provide a ample supply of power at the particular time it is needed," said H. G. Harris, assistant examiner.

"The amount of electricity in the air varies considerably, there being a greater quantity during a storm than at any other time and no constant source of power would be available."

"The cost of these inventions would far exceed any power they might give. They simply are ridiculous in the light of modern knowledge."

Suit Growing Out Of Aimee Case Is Reported Settled

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—Finis was written today to court action which had promised to echo phases of the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnapping case with the announcement that a $1,000,000 defamation of character suit had been settled out of court.

The announcement was made by S. S. Hahn, attorney for Mrs. Viria Kimball, of Oakland, who had instituted suit against the evangelist in connection with the mysterious "Miss X" of the case. The terms of the settlement were not disclosed.

Mrs. Kimball had asserted that her reputation had been besmirched by intimations that she was the woman who had been seen riding up and down coast highways with Kenneth G. Ormiston, again and the jury retired.

20 Ballots Taken

Twenty ballots were taken before a verdict was reached. It was reported. From the start the vote is said to have been 11 to one for conviction, with the argument centering on whether to advise the life term or allow the priest to hang.

Defense Counsel O. A. Jacobs stated after the verdict that a motion for a new trial would be made. No statement has been made as to the possibility of an appeal, but it is understood that an attempt will be made to take the matter again to the supreme court.

When the decision was announced, Goodwin showed scarcely a shade of emotion. He had been prepared for the climax, however, by the jury's earlier indication that it was leaning toward a conviction.

At the first announcement, the priest's face changed to a deadly pallor and it was some time before he recovered his normal color.

Before long, however, he was smiling and even laughing with his attorneys, Jacobs and Buel Wood, of Los Angeles. His smile and his laugh were taken by some to mean that he was demonstrating his bravado in the face of failure.

Proof of Callousness?

Many observers recalled declarations of the prosecution that the priest is a cold blooded murderer and saw proof of his callousness in his joking attitude.

The victory of West and Blodgett is taken to mean that the jury believed the story presented by prosecution witnesses and has given it the stamp of truth beyond question.

That story was that Goodwin and his former pal, Albert Dewey Gaines, went to San Diego with J. J. Patterson on March 13, 1926. The account of the trip showed that the trio was seen at several places in the southern city and that the men returned to Los Angeles on March 15, by way of Santa Ana canyon.

There they drove a short distance along a narrow road and stopped. Nearby Patterson was murdered.

Says He Saw Smoke Gaines, at the former trial, testified that he saw a thin column of smoke rising from the spot as they drove away.

"Where's Patterson?" he claimed to have asked.

"Never mind Patterson. Let's get out of here," he said Goodwin replied. A little farther on, Gaines declared, Goodwin threw from the car a gasoline can.

The body was discovered March 22, partly decomposed and with the clothing burned.

Gaines, after Goodwin's first trial, also was convicted of the murder.

Gaines refused to testify at the second trial. He was regarded as the key witness and it was said, when he declined to talk, that the prosecution's case had been greatly damaged. The defense was jubilant. The prosecution declared that Gaines' refusal would not diminish the chances of a conviction.

Gaines was held in contempt of court and later probably will be returned to Folsom, where he was sent after his conviction.

SHUTDOWN OF VENTURA FIELD UNTRUE, CLAIM

The Ventura area was thrown into a near panic today by the report with the prospect of 4000 workers out of employment, but the statement from Lloyd relieved the situation, as a 25 per cent shutdown will not affect the employment situation.

Drilling of new wells, which furnishes most of the employment, will continue unabated under the requirements of the various leases, according to Lloyd.

Field Reported Closed To Prevent Gas Wastage

SACRAMENTO, March 8.—Conservation of California's natural gas and oil resources was scheduled to begin late today or Friday.

At a joint meeting here yesterday of the gas conservation committee, appointed by Gov. C. C. Young and the oil operators' general committee, it was agreed to close the entire Ventura oil field.

The committee's action in closing the Ventura field followed a general survey of conditions made by experts of both bodies. The action was made with the view of "shutting in" a considerable quantity of oil now a surplus on the market and reducing natural gas wastage.

It has been estimated that enough natural gas is wasted in California every day to supply almost every city of the state.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Fred G. Stevenot, chairman of the governor's committee, announced that within 48 hours more than 70,000 barrels of oil a day and approximately 100,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas would have been shut in.

The state committee also is working on a plan whereby the gas conserved may be sent to cities now using manufactured gas.

The oil operators' committee represents 15 of the major oil operators of the state.

Patten said he had not noted the numbers of the bonds, but later did ascertain the numbers.

As a result of this method of disposal of the bonds, Sinclair's name did not appear among the list of contributors to the Republican campaign fund.

"Upham did not tell me where he got the bonds," Patten said when Walsh told him the evidence showed Sinclair had given Hays the bonds two days before Upham called Patten on the telephone.

He said William Wrigley Jr., Arthur Cutten and E. B. Eckhart were wealthy Chicagoans who usually contribute to the Republican campaign chest.

Patten submitted a list of his contributions to the Republican campaign from 1920 to 1924. It showed he gave a total of $91,000 to various candidates.

ANOTHER UNSOLICITED TRIBUTE FOR ALL-BRAN

Good news for sufferers from constipation

Mrs. Kiell sat down and wrote us a letter when she had proved ALL-BRAN a safe "sure-cure" for constipation. Read her voluntary tribute:

"I have been using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN for quite some time and I want to tell you how much I appreciate it. I have found it is a sure-cure for constipation, and know it is a remarkable regulator for the stomach. After using it, my family and I certainly will not be without it. I have even gone so far as to send some of it to my mother in Poland, Europe."

Gratefully yours,
Mrs. ANNA KIELL,
77 Wolcott Terrace, Newark, N. J.

Perhaps you know what a terrible affliction constipation is. Blighting wherever it thrives. Ruining health. Marring beauty. Causing headaches, back pains, sour breath, loss of sleep—indeed, leading to more than forty serious diseases.

But did you know it can be easily relieved by a pleasant cereal food? Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring relief. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Serve with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use in cooking. At grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DEAN PICKENS WILL TALK HERE TONIGHT

The national anthem of the Negro will be sung tonight by a chorus composed of members of the congregation of the Second Baptist church, in conjunction with the lecture to be presented at the Frances Willard junior high school by Dean William Pickens, well known Negro educator.

The anthem was composed some time ago by J. Rosemond Johnson, who has written a number of musical selections as well as a great deal of poetry which has been widely read by poetry lovers throughout the United States, according to the Rev. D. L. McGriff, pastor of the Second Baptist church of this city, who will introduce tonight's lecturer.

Dean Pickens will discuss some of the problems facing the Negro race in America and will attempt to give the white people a better understanding of the colored people. The lecture will begin at 8 o'clock.

Divorce Sought
Even when "the other woman's" parents sent her to Europe, she continued to correspond with Mrs. Jessie M. Barnett's husband, she alleged in a divorce complaint filed today against Fay L. Barnett. The complaint states that the Barnetts were married in 20 and separated last December.

DISPUTE OVER OLD BUILDING NOW SETTLED

E. P. Stafford, of the Farmers and Merchants' Savings bank, today had established by a search of records, the claim he made at the junior chamber of commerce meeting Monday night that the Cherry Blossom building on the southwest corner of Fourth and Bush streets was the first brick building erected in Santa Ana.

When old timers were telling some of the ancient history of the city at the meeting of pioneers with the chamber Monday night, George E. Peters, assistant cashier of the branch Bank of Italy, asserted that the J. H. Brunner building at 116 East Fourth street was the first structure. Stafford challenged the statement.

Records reveal that on March 20, 1877, Shaffer and Sammis sold to E. J. Dodge frontage on East Fourth street extending 75 feet west from Bush. Dodge started the brick on the corner immediately following purchase. The building was first occupied by Goldsmith brothers with a stock of general merchandise.

Dodge sold 25 feet off his lot to Brunner Aug. 6, 1877, and in the following month, on the 28th day, sold his remaining interest to N. O. Stafford, father of E. P. Stafford.

While the price Brunner paid for his 25 feet is not revealed in the records, the property today is appraised at around $100,000—and the building is just about as it was originally built.

EDITOR SPEAKS BEFORE PEACE OFFICERS BODY

Speaking before 65 police officers of Orange county at the McFarland Cafe, Fullerton last night, at a regular meeting of the Orange County Peace Officers' association, J. Frank Burke, editor and publisher of The Register, suggested a representative in the state legislature who would protect officers from the "spoil system."

His remarks, interspersed with a number of actual happenings, were based on politics in public office, but he was careful to show that politics and the spoil system were entirely different, bringing out the fact that politics may, in many cases, work for the best interests.

He pictured a line between the "do your duty and be careful who you arrest" policy and declared that real law enforcement would never come until politics were taken away from the enforcement of law.

"Just remember that the man you arrest is neither a democrat or a republican, he is a criminal," Burke said, telling a story of a prohibition officer in Ohio who made an arrest and who, when he was "called" for it, replied that the man was neither a democrat nor a republican, but a criminal.

Mr. Burke was introduced to the officers by Police Commissioner Carmichael, Fullerton.

The meeting was one of the best in point of attendance, of the year, according to F. G. Yoder, secretary.

CHAMBER COMMITTEE HEADED BY RAYMER SCHEDULED FOR CALL ON PRESIDENT TODAY

George Raymer, secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, and other members of the Santa Ana committee were scheduled to confer in Washington with President Coolidge and Secretary Wilbur, today, with reference to selection of a site near Santa Ana for the dirigible base the government proposes locating on the Pacific coast, according to a telegram received today from Raymer by Clyde Downing, president of the chamber.

"The situation is hopeful, but there is much work ahead for Santa Ana," reads the wire.

The secretary will be in Pittsburgh tomorrow, where he will meet officers of the Pittsburgh Glass company, which Santa Ana is endeavoring to interest in a factory site near Newport bay, and on Saturday will visit Dr. Arnstein at Akron, Ohio, for discussion of the suggested site here for the factory of the Goodyear Zeppelin company, which has been awarded a contract for constructing two dirigibles for the government. Sunday will find the secretary in Chicago, where he will consult with Admiral Segfield with reference to the base site here.

Raymer and James F. W. Archibald, war correspondent, who is a member of the Santa Ana committee, were in conference yesterday.

Keep Looking Young

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eye with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c—Adv.

Worshipper Out Talks Preacher

LONDON, March 8.—A bibulous woman who insisted on talking louder in an East End church than the minister could preach was diplomatically removed from the congregation by the ingenuity of a church warden.

The warden whispered to her and to the surprise of the distracted preacher she immediately got up and went out quietly. Asked how he managed to get rid of her so easily the warden replied: "Simple. I invited her to come out and have another."

ASSERTS STATE SHOULD REDUCE EXPENDITURES

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 8.—With the cost of government in California soaring upward at the rate of approximately $50,000,000 a year, and the present per capita tax bill more than $165, State Controller Ray L. Riley has sounded a warning to the people of the state to "Stop, look, and listen."

"One thing is certain about the state of California," Riley declares. "We're not going to remedy a paternalistic government. Our state institutions and agencies are so firmly grafted upon the body politic that they can't be dislodged. And I'm not convinced that they should be dislodged."

"However, California can and should cut down on its bond issues. We're buying today like drunken sailors for current issues. When we can't pay cash we issue bonds. These bonds must mature some day, so we're really mortgaging future prosperity."

It is too early to predict what the newly-organized California tax commission can do toward combatting this trend, according to the state controller, who has some very positive ideas about economy in government.

"There should be more direct responsibility on the part of the average citizen to his state government," Riley continued. "Just what shape this should take I am not prepared to say. However, we are now seeking revenue from special sources, trusting that they will pass the cost along to the consumer. Direct responsibility awakens interest of a citizen in what his government is costing him."

State Controller Riley is out of sympathy with the present tendency of universities to train young men for what he terms the "white collar jobs."

"It's ridiculous to think that California can utilize 35,000 lawyers, doctors, school teachers and professional men a year," he says. "There is overproduction of professional men in this state on the part of its universities just as there is overproduction of certain crops by the farmers."

"Just as we study the market for our pines, peaches and oranges, so should we study the market for our young people educated in institutions of higher learning. We should strive to keep as many of them in the state as we can."

ELECTION OF CHAMBER HEAD IS DEFERRED

J. P. Baumgartner and Sam Hurwitz were the only new members elected Tuesday to the board of directors of the chamber of commerce to respond at the meeting of the board this morning, S. H. Finley and O. H. Barr, the other two new members, being unable to be present.

Barr, however, was represented by a letter, in which he requested that his resignation be accepted. CHAMBER COMMITTEE HEADED BY RAYMER SCHEDULED FOR CALL ON PRESIDENT TODAY

George Raymer, secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, and other members of the Santa Ana committee were scheduled to confer in Washington with President Coolidge and Secretary Wilbur, today, with reference to selection of a site near Santa Ana for the dirigible base the government proposes locating on the Pacific coast, according to a telegram received today from Raymer by Clyde Downing, president of the chamber.

"The situation is hopeful, but there is much work ahead for Santa Ana," reads the wire.

The secretary will be in Pittsburgh tomorrow, where he will meet officers of the Pittsburgh Glass company, which Santa Ana is endeavoring to interest in a factory site near Newport bay, and on Saturday will visit Dr. Arnstein at Akron, Ohio, for discussion of the suggested site here for the factory of the Goodyear Zeppelin company, which has been awarded a contract for constructing two dirigibles for the government, Sunday will find the secretary in Chicago, where he will consult with Admiral Segfield with reference to the base site here.

Raymer and James F. W. Archibald, war correspondent, who is a member of the Santa Ana committee, were in conference yesterday.

Keep Looking Young

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eye with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 50c.—Adv.

Worshipper Out Talks Preacher

LONDON, March 8.—A bibulous woman who insisted on talking louder in an East End church than the minister could preach was diplomatically removed from the congregation by the ingenuity of a church warden.

The warden whispered to her and to the surprise of the distracted preacher she immediately got up and went out quietly. Asked how he managed to get rid of her so easily the warden replied: "Simple. I invited her to come out and have another."

EFFORT TO END LIFE WITH GAS IS FRUITLESS

An effort to "die with his boots on," as he expressed it, was an utter failure for Richard Anunson, 30, who was found at the Sunny-air apartments, 602 East Fourth street, late yesterday with a gas hose in his mouth, apparently near death.

Only Two Kinds

ARDEN CERTIFIED MILK
HOLSTEIN FOR INFANTS
GUERNSEY FOR ADULTS
CALL 237
Excelsior Creamery Co.

He was rushed to the Orange county hospital where medical aid was given and today was reported rapidly on the road to recovery.

Police were called to the apartment house on a report that a dead man had been found there. When Officers Elliott and Perry arrived, they found Anunson lying on the floor with a gas hose in his mouth. He was conscious at the time and when asked why he wanted to take his life, is reported to have replied that he had nothing to live for.

A suicide note, found in his pocket read: "Broken hearted—Blue. Goodbye. I'm sick and tired of life anyway. What does it hold for me?" On the other side of the card on which the note was scribbled, he had written "I've often wanted to die with my boots on."

That Anunson also kept a diary during the time he took the gas was borne out by the finding of a little blue notebook picked up near him, in which two entries had been made. One was "It feels so good." The other read: "I am half gone—die by gas."

LACK OF WORK IN CALIFORNIA TO BE REDUCED

SACRAMENTO, March 8.—There will be no unemployment problem in California next winter.

This is the determination of Governor C. C. Young, who looks with favor upon the suggestion of Will J. French, director of the state department of industrial relations, that the governor appoint a special state "employment commission" to make a year-round study of labor conditions.

Such a commission would be the first of its kind in the United States, the governor was told. It would do much to relieve conditions that have resulted today in an army of 150,000 unemployed men and women in California.

"With the mild climate that we have in California," said the governor, "I know of no reason why work cannot go on throughout the year. There must be some way to avoid the constant repetition of this problem."

"I believe that a special commission could do much to find a way to provide work all the year 'round. The department of public works and the highway commission could save some of its important work for the winter months when other branches of industry have closed down. That alone would be a big help towards solving the problem the executive said."

Much of the state work has already gotten underway and the $50,000,000 road improvement and construction program charted out by the highway commission has already made a dent in the winter unemployment.

The state free employment agencies are working over-time trying to do their share in the "speeding-up" process. During January 6,453 men and 2,095 women, a total of 8,553 were placed by the state free agencies. Governor Young recommended that the agencies remain open on Sundays to provide work for the needy.

Presaging a general breaking up of the heretofore tense situation, northern California's first "bread-line" was discontinued this week. When the "soup kitchen" first opened, on January 18, the place was crammed with hungry, homeless men, seeking to fill the aching void. During the past two weeks the attendance steadily diminished until it became no longer necessary to maintain it.

More than 10,000 meals were distributed during the month and half the kitchen was open. The meals cost $751.81 or an average of seven cents each.

TALBERT

TALBERT, March 8.—Los Angeles Playground was the destination of a party of local people Sunday. In the company were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Stoffle and son, Bernard Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gisler, Harold Gisler, Miss Lucille Gisler, Miss Cecille McIntyre, Miss Rachel Lamb, Annette Gisler, Bill Starkey and Harry Gisler.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Talbert entertained a number of guests in their home over the week-end. Saturday night, Mrs. Talbert's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Pettitt and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kerr, whose marriage was an event of last month, and Mrs. Kerr's son, Junior Perrine of Whittier, were overnight guests. On Sunday, Mrs. Talbert's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carter, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Carter and children, Betty Bell, and Billie King Carter of Long Beach, and Mrs. Ben Rogers and daughters, Dorothy, Rose and Violet Rogers, joined the party at the Talbert home for dinner.

The Sunday evening service at the Talbert Methodist church was conducted in the absence of the pastor by Fred Wells, of Greenville, who at that time preached his first sermon. It is Mr. Wells' intention to become a minister.

On Wednesday evening the services at the chapel at the county hospital were conducted by Rev. J. J. Woodson and a number of the local Epworth League members who each month conduct a service there.

Mr. and Mrs. John Woodson and daughter, Miss Dorothy Woodson, returned Monday from Colton and Upland, where they spent four days visiting relatives.

The beet crops of the community were greatly benefitted by the rain. The beet acreage here is much more extensive here than for a number of years past. All ranchers plan on doing their hauling at harvest time exclusively by truck. This method was used quite extensively last season but this year no beets are to go to the factory by rail for the first time since beet culture was started in this vicinity.

FINDS GLASS IN HIS SALT; TELLS POLICE

I. W. Weaver, colored, 917 West First street, believes someone is trying to murder him, he told police yesterday, at the same time showing officers a quantity of salt from his table, in which was found glass.

Several white men have been seen near the Weaver home during the past several days, Weaver reported. They are strangers to him, he said, and he believes they may have had something to do with the placing of glass in his salt.

LACK OF WORK IN CALIFORNIA TO BE REDUCED

SACRAMENTO, March 8.—There will be no unemployment problem in California next winter.

This is the determination of Governor C. C. Young, who looks with favor upon the suggestion of Will J. French, director of the state department of industrial relations, that the governor appoint a special state "employment commission" to make a year-round study of labor conditions.

Such a commission would be the first of its kind in the United States, the governor was told. It would do much to relieve conditions that have resulted today in an army of 150,000 unemployed men and women in California.

"With the mild climate that we have in California" said the governor, "I know of no reason why work cannot go on throughout the year. There must be some way to avoid the constant repetition of this problem."

"I believe that a special commission could do much to find a way to provide work all the year 'round. The department of public works and the highway commission" could save some of its important work for the winter months when other branches of industry have closed down. That alone would be a big help towards solving the problem the executive said.

Much of the state work has already gotten underway and the $50,000,000 road improvement and construction program charted out by the highway commission has already made a dent in the winter unemployment.

The state free employment agencies are working over-time trying to do their share in the "speeding-up" process. During January 6,458 men and 2,095 women, a total of 8,553 were placed by the state free agencies. Governor Young recommended that the agencies remain open on Sundays to provide work for the needy.

Presaging a general breaking up of the heretofore tense situation, northern California's first "bread-line" was discontinued this week.

When the "soup kitchen" first opened, on January 18, the place was crammed with hungry, homeless men, seeking to fill the aching void. During the past two weeks the attendance steadily diminished until it became no longer necessary to maintain it.

More than 10,000 meals were distributed during the month and half the kitchen was open. The meals cost $751.81 or an average of seven cents each.

TALBERT

TALBERT, March 8.—Los Angeles Playground was the destination of a party of local people Sunday. In the company were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Stoffie and son, Bernard Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gisler, Harold Gisler, Miss Lucille Gisler, Miss Cecille McIntyre, Miss Rachel Lamb, Anotone Gisler, Bill Starkey and Harry Gisler.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Talbert entertained a number of guests in their home over the week-end. Saturday night, Mrs. Talbert's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Pettitt and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kerr, whose marriage was an event of last month, and Mrs. Kerr's son, Junior Perrine of Whittier, were overnight guests. On Sunday, Mrs. Talbert's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carter, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Carter and children, Betty Bell, and Billie King Carter of Long Beach, and Mrs. Ben Rogers and daughters, Dorothy, Rose and Violet Rogers, joined the party at the Talbert home for dinner.

The Sunday evening service at the Talbert Methodist church was conducted in the absence of the pastor by Fred Wells, of Greenville, who at that time preached his first sermon. It is Mr. Wells' intention to become a minister.

On Wednesday evening the services at the chapel at the county hospital were conducted by Rev. J. J. Woodson and a number of the local Epworth League members who each month conduct a service there.

Mr. and Mrs. John Woodson and daughter, Miss Dorothy Woodson, returned Monday from Colton and Upland, where they spent four days visiting relatives.

The beet crops of the community were greatly benefited by the rain. The beet acreage here is much more extensive here than for a number of years past. All ranchers plan on doing their hauling at harvest time exclusively by truck. This method was used quite extensively last season but this year no beets are to go to the factory by rail for the first time since beet culture was started in this vicinity.

FINDS GLASS IN HIS SALT; TELLS POLICE

I. W. Weaver, colored, 917 West First street, believes someone is trying to murder him, he told police yesterday, at the same time showing officers a quantity of salt from his table, in which was found glass.

Weaver reported that he had tasted the glass several days ago and on making an investigation found the ground glass in his salt. The salt was taken over by the police who launched an investigation.

Several white men have been seen near the Weaver home during the past several days, Weaver reported. They are strangers to him, he said, and he believes they may have had something to do with the placing of glass in his salt.

DECLARES ROBBERS ARE DOPE ADDICTS

ORANGE, March 8.—That 75 per cent of all the highway robberies committed are the work of users of dope, was one of the statements made by Judge Summers, who presided for many years in St. Louis at a meeting of Orange Grove lodge F. and A. M., this week.

Dope users are increasing by the millions, the speaker declared. A few years ago there were 1,000,000 dope addicts in the United States, now there are 4,000,000, he said.

Judge Summers based his assertions on a wide experience with the dope situation as vice president of the Anti Narcotic League of America, which position he now holds.

FAMOUS OPERA STAR ARRIVES FOR CONCERT

"Opera in English will be a complete success when American singers get the beauty of every word" declared Arthur Hackett-Granville today in commenting upon the future of American operas. "The English language is as full of beauty as any other language in the world, when it is properly spoken, and can be made quite as liquidly musical."

The distinguished American tenor reached the city today to be in readiness for his concert tomorrow night at the high school auditorium, the second event of the Ebell society International Artist series. He is an interesting man, and to the casual observer, bears no mark of being an artist of international fame—rather, one's first impression upon seeing him, is of a successful American business man. He is a particularly approachable person, with a good-natured smile and a humorous gleam in his eyes. And he practices what he preaches in regard to the mother-tongue, by speaking a clear and beautiful English—indeed his diction is one of the most noticeable things about him.

"Being the younger brother of a world-famous opera star has its disadvantages," he commented humorously when asked about his relationship to the famous Charles Hackett, who will be in Los Angeles for the Chicago Opera season. "When I started my career as a professional singer, the public was continually confusing me with Charles, and Charles with me. Naturally if I were to make a name, it must be on my own merit, and not because I was Charles Hackett's brother, so I decided the name of Granville. Now I have had a year of concerting and operatic engagements in my own country, I am ready to discontinue the Granville, and be known by my own name of Arthur Hackett."

Europe is a wonderful country for an artist to start his career, according to the tenor, and he has a firm foundation for his belief, for Europe was kind to the young man when he appeared as leading tenor with the Paris Opera company. He was there for three years, each one more successful than its predecessor. Probably that explains his perfect French, for he speaks the language with the same fluid ease that he speaks English. Tomorrow night's concert, which will begin promptly at 8:15 o'clock, is being eagerly anticipated by the city's music lovers, who are conversant with Hackett's reputation as a finished artist. The third number of the series will be the London String quartette which will be heard in the high school auditorium on Friday night, March 30.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS SPEECH ABOUT LINCOLN

A recital by the Rev. F. D. Blakesly, of Los Angeles, of personal recollections of Abraham Lincoln, was a feature of the meeting yesterday of the Santa Ana Kiwanis club.

So far as he has been able to learn, the Rev. Mr. Blakesly is one of three living persons who heard the martyred president in his last public utterance three days before his assassination, the speaker at the time being a boy of 19 and an attaché of the quarter-master's department at Washington. He is now 82 years of age, and is active and vigorous.

Pointing out that he saluted the president at the navy yard on the afternoon of the day on which he was shot, the minister said that a diary he maintained made it possible to clear up the more or less important point as to whether Lincoln on that afternoon went direct from the White House to the army post. Historians had written that the president went from the White House to the army barracks, and correction of this was not made until it was revealed through the minister's diary that the president went first to the navy yard.

The minister claims to be the tonight and Friday evening. Many who witnessed his phenomenal experiment of being buried alive for several hours a year or so ago, under the name of "Nostradamus" believe that the man is possessed of miraculous power. He denies that anything he accomplishes is with the aid of "spirits" or unseen forces. His claim goes so far as to state that nothing can be done which does not take into consideration the natural law of the universe. "Miracles are merely misunderstood truths," he explains.

He says by deep concentration, and long study of psychology as propounded by the Hindu masters he has developed certain faculties that are dormant in everyone, which makes him particularly sensitive to thought waves somewhat after the principle of the crystal radio receiver. It is by using these faculties that Ostojka is enabled to read the minds of others, he claims.

Upton Sinclair, the famous author who thoroughly investigated Ostojka and his method of psychic manifestations, declares him unqualifiedly to be a genuine exponent of the Hindu school of mysticism.

At his demonstration in Santa Ana, he will not only give exhibitions of his ability to read minds, but will also endeavor to relieve those who are ailing or in physical and mental distress.

PUBLIC SCHOOL WEEK WILL BE HELD IN APRIL

The annual observance of Public Schools Week will be held this year during the week beginning April 23 under a proclamation issued by the grand master of Masons of California, Will H. Fischer. While the observance of Public Schools weeks was originally instituted by the Masonic fraternity under the mastership of Charles Albert Adams, now a member to the state board of education, the affair has come to have such significance that the details are conducted by citizens generally in the different localities of the state. For the first time, this year, the general committee will embrace non-Masons; a testimonial to the degree of interest the public and the press of California are exhibiting.

This year's observance—the ninth—will be a "Community Public Schools Week."

In the proclamation of the grand master of Masons the following phrase is used: "And that it be particularly remembered that the observance of Public Schools week is a community affair in which we seek the active co-operation of local organizations and the participation of all the people in the community."

The state-wide committee that will have direction of the annual observance will be announced shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Porter are moving into their new four-room bungalow on their acre lot in the McComber tract.

Some time ago many Buena Park residents petitioned the telephone company for a Buena Park exchange, or an automatic service, which they now have reason to believe will soon be their good fortune to enjoy.

The West Orange County Publishing company is installing additional machinery and expects to have its modern plant ready for public exhibition within a short time.

Thirty-five Kiwanians were served a dinner by the Ladies' Aid society in the Community hall Tuesday night. Invocation was by the Rev. Burton Y. Neal. Prof. Harris, instructor of English at Whittier college, was the principal speaker of the evening. His subject was "Teamwork."

Watch Girls Gain in Two Weeks Time!

Growing girls and boys need something only Nature can provide. It isn't found in drugs, and it can't be done by diet. Enough fruit would keep the system sweet, but what youngster will eat a quart of apple-sauce every day; or six bananas or a pound of figs? But all children just love the daily treat of California fig syrup. A rich and fruity syrup that delights the palate, and aids digestion of anything that's eaten. And whets the appetite of children who don't eat enough. Fig syrup for that listless, sluggish, or feverish child! It invigorates a torpid liver; thoroughly cleanses the entire alimentary tract. It will solve childish ills that might otherwise end in stomach disorders or in diarrhea. Try fig syrup! In two weeks you may not recognize the boy or the girl who is now handicapped by constipation or sour bile. Three days will tell that better assimilation and elimination are established. Twenty-four hours will clear the furriest tongue and have bowels in better condition! So much better than tonics of temporary value; or harmful cathartics! Let pure fig syrup take the place of both, but see that you do get the genuine California fig syrup; say "California" when you ask for the generous, sixty-cent bottle.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Signed Cards

By JOELLA JOHNSON

GOOD morning, Miss Morton. I have come here to inform you that Ellen Tyler is crying down in my parlor with her face against my best chair—the one my sister gave me for a Christmas present.

The speaker, Mrs. Lawful, had just hurried into the employment office and had stopped short before Miss Morton's desk. Her face was round, red and shining; her eyes small and bright. Over her blue cotton skirt she wore a large starched white apron. Evidently she thought her thick dark hair was enough covering for head, for she wore no hat; or perhaps she disdained one as mere ornament. But there could be doubt whatever that the black and purple worsted shawl so tightly drawn about her thick shoulders was meant to be useful, rather than ornamental. Altogether, she presented a clean, if agitated, appearance.

"You know Ellen," went on Mrs. Lawful in a loud voice. "Of course it he'll be getting married now that he has a good job. Yes, to that stuck-up Josie Manning. You know her, too."

Miss Morton felt that she was being given credit for more knowledge than she possessed; that is, in regard to the number of their mutual friends.

"But Ellen wouldn't stop crying for Willie, either. She said you were that particular about the cards—that their being brought back to you all signed—and this morning the moment Willie's back was turned she starts crying again. 'I have had enough of your crying,' says I. 'I'll go down to the employment office and make the explanation myself before my chair is ruined!' While I am here, Miss Morton, I want to put in a complaint against that saucy minx—"

"Who? Which? What!" Miss Morton burst through the woman's torrent of words.

"Josie Manning! She comes here was spacious, it was likely to be crowded, therefore Miss Morton was glad that during this confidential work—whether Willie is married or single—and she looks to you for the work."

"Ask Ellen to come to me and I will explain," began Miss Morton of Mrs. Lawful.

"Haven't I just made all the explanations?" demanded that woman with a haughty toss of her head. "But," she promised. "I will go and tell Ellen that she can get work here; that I made all the fixing-up and everything will be all right."

And Mrs. Lawful hurried from the employment office, her temper, at that moment, almost as smooth as her well-brushed hair and her well-ironed apron.

Miss Morton's feelings, however, were far from smooth. Her pride in her work had received a blow. She had bent over her desk, she thought of the introduction card obtained, by poor Ellen, with bitter tears; moreover the thought of Mrs. Lawful's wrath. "This is what comes from his teeth. Elite indeed! If she was my trying for too much efficiency; a lady, wouldn't she make her baby from my insisting on positive proof, cut its teeth on its own belongings by signed introduction cards, of the and not on the card that belongs to position I have filled," she lamented this office? Ellen said she would ed.

And yet, Miss Morton knew that this efficiency might be the means of her getting a raise in salary!

"But what does an efficient system amount to if it is built on wrath and tears?" she protested.

Evidently, Miss Morton was prouder of her integrity than she was of her efficiency—although this efficiency might bring her a good salary. For suddenly she raised her head in triumph and avowed in sharp conviction: "Hereafter my work, and the work of my women, shall stand on its own merits"—she smiled whimsically—"and not on a foundation of signed 'Introducing Cards.'"

Guest—This is a very small bit of chicken you have given me, waiter. Waiter—Yes, sir; but you will find it will take you a long time to eat it.

Richardson—I don't know what to do—buy a car or a house.

Robertson—Simple. Buy a house and mortgage it to get the car. Then you'll have both."

BARBERRY LODGE bustled with activity in every room, for it was undergoing a renovation from attic to cellar, in order that a distinguished guest might be fittingly entertained there.

After an absence of five years, Bob Pillsbury was bringing home with him no less a personage than Blair Cuthbert, whom two continents workmen tramped through he hailed as the most promising writer of the day.

Fay Pillsbury, the youngest daughter of the lodge, spoke to her mother as they glided gingerly from room to room where the odor of fresh paint and varnish permeated the house, and where "wet paint" signs were scattered in divers places.

"Mother, do you know, I think all this fresh paint and varnish seem brazen. It fairly screams 'I'm new! I'm new!'"

"How absurd you are, Fay! You know the lodge has needed all this for a long time. It just means that we will have to retrench somewhere, in order to afford it."

"But, mother, even if the lodge is ancient and honorable. I love every shingle in it. Everything is so obviously new that it is spoiled for me. The old beamed ceiling in the living room is one of the places I had hoped would escape the decorators, but that, too, has become a martyr to modernism."

"That will do, Fay. It is enough to have the cook and the other maid finding fault because the house is upset. Betsy threatened to leave this morning if I have any more kitchen."

Fay could not resist this parting shot.

"Maybe Blair Cuthbert might have written a romance in Barberry Lodge if we had left the old ruin as it was. Mother, dear, you can't romance in such modern surroundings. . . . There, I'll not say another word about the house."

Fay stepped outside and drew in a long, deep breath. It seemed good to be outdoors filling one's lungs with pure air. She went into the garden now filled with early Spring flowers, and sat down on a bench.

"I wonder what Blair Cuthbert will be like," she soliloquized. "I do hope he is human, for they say most writers aren't. It must be rather nice to be a literary lion and have the world at one's feet. I wonder if he will fall in love with my big sister Lucille. I hope he does."

"Did you speak, miss?"

"Just talking to myself, John."

"John," said Fay, "don't you dare trim that hedge too evenly. Father and I like this place wild and untamed."

"It surely is all of that," said John the gardener, failing to keep discourt from his voice.

Several days later, when the family car came up the driveway bearing Blair Cuthbert and Bob Pillsbury, the machine hadn't come to a full stop before Fay had jumped on the running board and had greeted her brother with an enveloping hug.

"What a whale of a difference five years make," teased her brother.

"When I left home this kid was a homey little mutt with pigtailis. Now I return and find her a perfect charming young lady."

"To which I heartily agree," said Blair Cuthbert. Then he murmured something about the fine situation of the lodge and its true-to-nature appearance. At that moment he could have willingly bartered wealth, fame—in fact everything, for such a welcome home-coming as he had just witnessed.

Fay greeted him with one of her illuminating smiles, while she mentally registered a picture of the tall, clean-cut young author as he acknowledged her brother's introduction.

During the first weeks of Blair Cuthbert's stay, Fay purposely avoided him, for she was given to understand that he might be a good catch for Lucille and she was generous enough to want her sister to have a clear field.

Blair Cuthbert had entrenched himself in the good graces of the Pillsbury household. His travels and experiences, including two years at the mine with Bob Pillsbury, were an endless source of interest to the family. Once at dinner, when he

Fay, however, gave him no clue of the character she would portray.

On that memorable night, she danced with him several times without his knowing it was she. On her Cinderella costume was pinned this note. "I shall not speak until 10."

She had slipped away during a lull in the dancing and had gone upstairs on the landing.

Standing apart from the crowd she espied Blair Cuthbert dressed as an African prince, and looking decidedly bored. She had recognized him by his ring.

Fay then did a bold thing. The clock had just struck 10. She took off her silver slipper and dropped it at the feet of the prince.

Instantly he looked up and saw a mask raised and two laughing eyes or so.

He bounded up the steps two at a time and, bowing low, said, "The prince accepts the challenge of Cinderella." He placed the slipper on

A Story Accepted

By HAZEL COURTNEY

ON the way to the village post-office Doris hugged her secret with hopeless desire that this would be the end. During the first days of breathless suspense she had rushed along in expectation of finding a check in the family letter box, but as the weeks had worn on without a sign she began to taste the bitterness of waiting and watching until that hope was quite, quite dead. Now her purpose was to secure the returned manuscript from the box without detection, and to keep the secret of her venture hidden. She wrote for publication! How silly Leon Walte had been to suggest the possibility of her talent: How still more silly she had been to take his kidding in earnest. Doris blamed herself for that.

Now she had commenced to avoid meeting him on the village street. She knew that he had taken Irene Bascom to a show, and scorned him for the defection. How perfectly silly she had been to thrill when he had wanted her to go with him. How still more silly she had been to think that he cared! Doris thanked the stars that she hadn't told Leon about the bit of writing she had attempted because of his investigation. At least she had that shred of self-respect remaining for rehabilitation. He need never know that she had given his prompting credence! Nor that she cared!

Doris unlocked the family mail box and removed the letters with nerveless fingers. Thin things that didn't interest her, she supposed, she began to run the letters over. And then she stopped with a gasp. One envelope bore a magazine inscription on the corner, and was addressed to her. She tore it open and pulled out the folded check. The words of the letter inclosing it danced giddily before her eyes. The story was pronounced acceptable. It was herewith paid for! Doris went out into the Autumn sunshine on dancing feet, the check in her bare hand.

Now, she would walk up the street where Leon might be expected at this time of day. She would meet him with her head up, and a lofty gesture of gratitude. The very pavement seemed to bounce her buoyantly as she went along. The rising wind stung against her hot, flushed cheeks, and fluttered the check in her bare hand. And there was Leon yard. Beyond that was a meadow. Leon vaulted the wall and gave chase there, jumping the troublesome ditches, but the flying check still eluded him. Irene giggled at his antics, which indeed looked mad enough. But Doris clambered over the wall to join her knight, and had jumped several ditches before Leon captured the vagrant slip of paper and came toward her tucking it in his pocket.

"Better let me take care of it for you, Doris!" he said.

Doris felt her lips stiffen as they joined Irene. That check was the most precious thing she had ever possessed. She wanted the feel of it in her own trembling fingers. It was unthinkable that Leon should so coolly take it into possession. She hadn't been to blame that it had blown away. But Irene's giggle fired her to a contrivance decision. She called Leon's bluff.

"Take care of it for me, Le, by all means," she said.

"The idea, Le! Give it back!" flustered Irene. "It doesn't belong to you. Let Doris have her check!" But Leon had taken the dare.

"So long, Dot!" he said. "Irene was in a hurry when we met you!" Doris held her head high as she went on. She felt that she ought to be more angry than she was. And over his coat sleeve as they walked together. "I couldn't tell you how great I thought that was when there was someone else listening. I knew you could do it!"

"That was why I tried," whispered Doris.

"But you haven't seemed to want me around lately!"

Her hand crept tighter around his arm. The street shadows were thickening fast and no one would notice.

"You didn't seem to want to be around," she faltered.

"I'm here now, and I'm going to stay," he breathed.

And her clinging fingers gave him a sweet answer to the plea.

Medical Man—You are suffering from indigestion. Drink a glass of hot water every morning.

The Sufferer—I've been doing that for some time, doctor, only my landlady calls it coffee.

"Do you see much of your husband?"

"No; very little—about an hour a day."

"You poor dear!"

"Oh, an hour soon goes, you know."

A Corner in Antiques

By CLYDE WELDON

HAILET TARVISH has designs on the spinsterhood of Janet Safford. He was getting well and had been home from the hospital some six months now. The little nurse that took care of him at St. John's had turned out to be Mary's daughter and Mary had been the sweetheart of his youth. She had also turned out to be his good brownie who, in her two hours off duty, had magically turned his dusty little antique shop into a cozy home. He had given up the lodgings in Bleaker street and moved his personal effects into the little shop, thus saving considerable toward making up for his hospital expenses.

Yes, Tarvish's fortunes were looking up, all on account of Mary's daughter. And, of course, Tarvish wished to repay her for making something of his broken life. Not in money, of course. Oh, my no! That was out of the question.

And then there was the matter of his writing. He had found great comfort sitting before his blazing fire and doing a little reading and a great deal of writing. Tarvish had once been a student, and now that some woman took a friendly interest in his affairs, he found time and inclination to write for the newspapers and magazines again. Surely he must pay her in kind. So he daily thought of Janet's happiness and determined to play matchmaker.

It was old home week in Westby, beginning this Monday morning, and Tarvish had thought out what he considered a quite brilliant idea. Janet was to dress in the costume of a generation back and play clerk in the shop in her two hours off. Wouldn't that start something?

He was sure that the idea was bound to bring patronage for him and romance for Janet, for he proposed for her to wear none other than the blue flowered silk gown and the little poke bonnet with pink roses on it that her mother had worn when she was young, when Tarvish himself was courting her.

Tarvish was forced to admit that Janet was handsomer than her mother's writing. He had found great comfort sitting before his blazing fire and doing a little reading and a great deal of writing. Tarvish had once been a student, and now that for luncheon. Well, as he isn't here, the lure of poke bonnets, for Janet still wore hers, and shining black eyes glanced from beneath a wreath of curls and pink roses.

At exactly the same hour the next day Dr. Kyle remembered what he had come to the antique shop for on the Monday.

Tarvish grinned when he saw him coming, for Dr. Kyle had entered into the spirit of Old Home Week and was dressed in a costume to correspond to the period of Janet's parade.

A group of young men stood before the fire pricing the andirons, the pie-crust table, the old clock, and the lustre dishes.

Dr. Kyle's face was a study as he pushed his way through the group to Tarvish.

"I have bought the clock, table, chairs andirons and dishes of the young lady. Please reserve them in this corner until such time soon as I shall need them."

Tarvish elbowed the young men out of the shop as Janet entered. It would never do to let her know that every word the group had uttered had been carefully rehearsed by Tarvish.

"Well, I have provided a corner in antiques, let the little old poke bonnet do the rest," chuckled the collector of heirlooms, as the intriguers were swallowed up in the passing parade.

Joyce—Dick didn't blow his brains out when you rejected him. He came round and proposed to me.

Joan—Then he must have got rid of them some other way.

"My razor doesn't cut at all."

"Why, Henry, you don't mean to tell me that your beard is tougher than the Elliotts?"

McKinley Entertainment
The McKinley School P. T. A. is rejoicing over the success of its entertainment on last Friday evening. The auditorium of the Frances Willard junior high school was practically filled when the program was opened by the Willard orchestra playing several numbers under the direction of S. J. Mustel.

Wallace McKague sang the "Tin Pan Parade" accompanied by Mrs. Eugene Rief. Miss Ariel Thompson played a guitar solo, "By the Waters of the Minnetonka."

A clever little play "Two Dollars, Please" was given by the executive board and teachers. Miss Gertrude Potts was all of the village squire with frock coat, beard, spectacles and all. Mrs. Alvin Nowotny and Mrs. Heine were the bride and groom and their witnesses were Mrs. Hunter and Miss Young. Mrs. Charles Carrillo took the part of "Run-A-Way Mary" who eloped with her sweetheart John, who was none other than Mrs. Tom Lacy. Mary's Aunt Sally was enacted perfectly by Mrs. Piper.

Miss Gertrude Stebbins, dancing instructor, introduced several of her clever pupils. "Dancing Tambourine" sung and danced by Nancy Laurie; "Midnight Waltz" solo by Gergetta Siddoway; "Oriental Dance" by Helen Evans; "Spanish Dance" by Miss Veda Mitchell; Military solo by Genevieve Glover;

"Myskin was a sight"

"I couldn't look people in the face, I was so ashamed of my skin! It was always blotched with pimples and blackheads and at times itched terribly. I had tried everything and was so discouraged that I couldn't bring myself to take hope in anything. You can imagine my surprise therefore when one application of Rowles Mentho Sulphur almost completely cleared my skin. I could have danced with joy! In a short time you wouldn't know my skin—it was so clear, so soft and white."

Thousands of people are discovering that there is a remedy for skin trouble—even fiery, itching eczema! It's the magical combination of sulphur and menthol-sulphur for clearing the skin, menthol for healing the broken and irritated tissue. Rowles Mentho Sulphur is inexpensive and all druggists supply it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles—Adv.

and a delightful "Bowery Clog" by Nancy Laurie and Gergetta Siddoway. All numbers were accompanied by Mrs. Eugene Rief. Mrs. John Estes Jr. gave two very humorous readings which pleased the children as well as the older folk.

Several numbers by the Harrell quartette were then enjoyed. This part of the program was all the more appreciated because of the fact that all are members of the same family. S. L. Harrell and his two daughters, Mrs. Lucille Harrell-Bond and Miss Laverne Harrell, and his son Gilbert.

Mrs. Lucille Harrell-Bond gave two beautiful numbers, "Birthday" by Woodman and "Sing Me to Sleep" by Edwin Groom. Miss Adeleine Cochems was accompanist. Russell Thompson's Hawaiian Trio, consisting of Russell Thompson, Ariel Thompson and Mike Alvino, delighted with a group of numbers, "Wandering Blues," "King's Serenade," and "Farewell Blues."

The last number was a pantomime given by the children of the school, "Father Time and the Twelve Months." Robert Gale was Father Time and each of the months was well represented by some young boy or girl, each wearing the costume characteristic of the month represented.

Mrs. H. L. McKague was responsible for this entertainment and she is more than pleased to announce that the sum of at least eighty-five dollars was added to the treasury from the proceeds of the entertainment and the candy sale, under the supervision of Mrs. Schneider.

Electric Motors
are like golf

It isn't so much how hard you hit, as how you hit, in golf. A body pivot, accompanied by stance, upswing, down-stroke and follow-through, sends the ball down the fairway. But, the distance to the green tempers the form—you balance your movements to get a stinging drive or a "sweet" approach.

Building a motor is like playing golf in that certain electrical and mechanical qualities must be balanced. There's one right combination for every application. Finding it is a matter of the skill, equipment, resources, and experience of the motor manufacturer. Westinghouse has all these—especially experience. The Westinghouse Hollow Shaft Motor is carving out a name for itself on irrigation projects—a standard motor, in Pacific Coast stock, balanced to the job.

Put one responsibility back of the entire motor application by using Westinghouse control apparatus as well as Westinghouse motors.

TUNNEY MEETS 'LOVELY' GIRL; MATCH HINTED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 8.—One of the world's three most eligible bachelors has met "one of the loveliest girls."

Gene Tunney admitted as much yesterday when he took Miss Caroline Bishop, Beverly Hills, Cal., to the station and bade her and her aunt, Mrs. Fred Thompson, goodbye.

Before the train left these public announcements were made:

Miss Bishop: "I think Mr. Tunney one of the most admirable men of today but it seems an unfair strain on our friendship for the newspapers to have us engaged every time we are seen together."

Mr. Tunney: "Miss Bishop is one of the loveliest girls I have ever known, but it is decidedly premature and unfair to her to suggest that we are betrothed."

Rumors and predictions came like wildfire today as Miami Beach sat on the sands and gossiped over the remarks made by the world's leading prize fighter and a girl considered among the most charming in Beverly Hills.

Tunney smiled when he was asked point blank "are you engaged?" He declined to elaborate, however, on his statement.

The parting at the train was very formal—only a handshake and smile for each and Miss Bishop stepped jauntily aboard.

She is said to have traveled from Los Angeles to Chicago for the Dempsey-Tunney fight, returning to the west coast the next day.

LOCAL VOLLEYBALL TEAM WINS AGAIN

Coach R. R. Russick's team, composed of Ray Miles, Dr. J. M. Bulpitt, Bill and Kemper Taylor, Hal Smith and Warren Fletcher, vanquished Whittier here last night, 4 to 1. The one game lost was by a 15 to 14 margin.

Scores of their games were 15-12, 15-5, 15-7, 14-15 and 15-8.

HAL COX STOPS DON MCDONALD IN TWO ROUNDS

Jabbing and stabbing at random and cheated out of a knockout by the bell at the end of the first round, Hal Cox, clever light heavyweight from San Bernardino, punched Don McDonald full of holes in the second and knocked his colored antagonist insensible before the frame was half over in the main bout on Boyd Ellis' Delhi card last night.

Cox is a dangerous puncher and efforts should be made to match him with boxers more of his class. The McDonald kind will never give him much worry.

Although Jimmy Olivis, Hollywood lightweight, took a voyage to the floor in the last round of his go with Bobby Jones, he had already piled up enough points to offset this and got the decision. Most of the house was agreed this was the best match of the evening, there being no slack interest in the whole affair.

Tony Ross, Anaheim, carried the last three rounds and the nod from Ted Courtney in a well-matched feature event.

Jimmy Dunree beat Leo Loftus on points although Loftus looked good in the early part of the adventure.

Johnny Hernandez, Anaheim welter, was knocked down in the first round but rallied gamely to get the verdict over Bill Burdell.

The house was comfortably filled.

WHO'LL SUCCEED SPEAKER?
Much has been ventured on how much of an aid Tris Speaker will be to the Athletics this summer, but not very much thought has been given to his probable successor at Washington.

No doubt, Manager Harris and Owner Griffith have this situation well in hand and have made all their plans. But the matter still is one of conjecture to those who get their baseball knowledge from the public print.

Who will play center field for Washington this summer?

Will Harris use Sammy West, who was bothered with a bad leg last season, or Foster Ganzel, the youngster who broke in with a bang the last few days of the summer?

Or will he shift Rice or Goslin to the center field berth, keep the other in difficult left field, and use a youngster in right field?

Sammy West, who was bought from the Southern league at the end of the 1926 season, seems a favorite for the job at this time. He played in 38 games for the Senators last summer and compiled a batting average of .239.

TOUGH LUCK VICTIM

It might be said that tough luck has hovered about West for the past two seasons.

About mid-season of 1926, while hitting away at a .340 clip and leading the southern organization with 16 homers, he was hit in the head with a pitched ball and forced out for the rest of the season. For a time it was thought his baseball career was over.

Last year, he was troubled with a bad leg. Despite that, he took part in 48 games, batted .239 and showed prospects of proving a good outfielder.

He has the inside track on the job, but Griffith and Harris are very sweet on Ganzel, another Southern league graduate, who in a few more than a dozen games last fall did some very healthy clouting.

It must be remembered, however, that the pitching in the far end of the season is not as good as it is in the days before the pennant winner is about decided, and Ganzel will have to repeat his hitting this spring if he wants the job.

Ganzel is related to John Ganzel, who played several years ago with several big league clubs. He had a very good season in the minors last year and showed considerable promise.

THIS MAY HAPPEN

It is no great secret that center field is a very important position for any club, and that the Washington left field is a sun field and a very difficult one to play.

For that reason it may turn out that Rice or Goslin will be shifted to the middle sector by the Senator bosses and one of the youngsters be given the right field position.

Perhaps these two veterans will take charge of left and center field for the Senators, although either Ganzel or West may so impress Harris at spring training that they will be given the job to have and to hold until they show they are incapable of calling it all their own.

This is not worrying the Senators as much as some folks might believe the departure of Speaker should worry them. In fact, one might almost believe that Speaker won't be missed so very much by the Senators.

If Ganzel or West should approach the degree of play believed capable of them, the Washington club will have one of the best all-around outfielders in the league. Both of these young men are fast, good hitters, and clever.

96-POUND FINN LEADING PYLE'S 'BUNION-DERBY'

By JIM POWERS

(United Press Special Correspondent)
ENROUTE WITH PYLE CARAVAN, BARSTOW, Calif., March 8.—Muscle straining miles had taken their toll from the ranks of the transcontinental foot racers as the fifth day of the event saw the athletes plunge deeper into the cheerless wastes of the Mojave desert today.

Footsore and leg weary marathons whose sturdy advance had kept them among the leaders had retired from the race today and little Oille Wattinen, 96-pound Finn, led in total time elapsed as the survivors set out on today's 30-mile Barstow to Ludlow grind.

Three of the outstanding entrants in the Los Angeles to New York trek—Willie Kolchumainen, New York Finn; Nicholas Quonawahu, Arizona Hopi Indian, and Gunnar Nilson, noted Finnish-American—were among those who fell by the wayside yesterday.

Ed Gardner Tireless
The apparently tireless Ed Gardner, Seattle Negro, kept on with undiminished energy and durability to win yesterday's fourth leg. Gardner did the 27 miles from Victorville to Barstow in 5 hours, 15 minutes and 42 seconds.

Arthur Newton, of England, was 10 minutes behind him and Wattinen was third.

Wattinen had a total time mark of 19 hours, 15 minutes, and 42 seconds as he started out today. This was only two minutes better than the 19 hours, 17 minutes and 56 seconds to Gardner's credit.

Nester Erickson, the Finn, was three minutes behind the Negro.

It was becoming apparent today that not many of the 250 racers who started will get to New York. Many are convinced that the grueling 3400 mile race will thin the ranks to such an extent that there will not be finishers for the 10 parts of the $48,500 reward.

C. C. Pyle, the agile minded promoter who is backing the race, is making in money at each overnight stop. The small town persons who flock to the caravan tent-city remain to see the bearded lady, the human skeleton, the cigarette fiend and to try to throw three baseballs in the barrel to win a kewpie.

From Pyle's viewpoint the event is a great success to date. With the various chambers of commerce and the public contributing to his coffers even a few finishers will carry the burden of seeing the Pyle carnival to its grand finale in Yankee stadium.

The leading 15 racers in total time for the first four days:

Oille Wattinen, Finland, first, 19:15:42.	Ed Gardner, Seattle, second, 19:17:20:30.
Nester Erickson, Finland, third, 19:20:30.	Arthur Newton, England, fourth, 19:40:30.
J. Salo, New Jersey, fifth, 20:49:20.	Andrew Payne, Oklahoma, sixth, 20:50:52.
Arne Souminen, Finland, seventh, 21:02:20.	Dwight Houfaster, Michigan, eighth, 21:11:45.
Harry Rea, England, ninth, 21:30:35.	Scott Gonzales, Denver, tenth, 22:02:17.
Jack Phillipson, England, eleventh, 22:07:30.	John Kronick, Canada, twelfth, 22:10:55.
Earl Lin Dicks, Pennsylvania, thirteenth, 22:40:00.	Giacoma Clarizio, Italy, fourteenth, 22:54:40.
Juri Lossman, Esthonia, fifteenth, 23:02:40.

Night Baseball Candidates Out For First Work

With only a handful of candidates reporting, first practice was held in the Tustin high school gymnasium last night by prospective members of the Santa Ana team which will play in the Orange County Night Baseball league this summer.

Among those who went through a brief workout were "Memphis" Hill, Rudy Romo, "Pee-Wee" Scott, George Preble, Randolph Bell, Gene Hitt, Bill Cole, "Eeny" Wilcox and Stockbridge.

Horace Snow will captain the All-Stars this season and John Wilcox will serve as manager. Another practice will be conducted in the Tustin gymnasium next Wednesday evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

DRAWS BEAVER ASSIGNMENT

Bert Cole, the big southpaw who won 27 games for the Missions two years ago and who returns to Pacific Coast league time this semester after a year with the Chicago White Sox, will start on the ridge for Portland tomorrow in the Beavers' first game at the Orange County Fair grounds with the Philadelphia Royal Hillsdale Giants.

GEORGES CARPENTIER, SONG AND DANCE MAN IN ALGERIA, TO ATTEMPT RING COMEBACK

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, March 8.—From Algeria, where Georges Carpentier is singing and dancing in a music hall, comes word that the Frenchman may attempt another comeback.

In any other field of endeavor this announcement might be laughed off with a "what if he does?" but the boxing world and its ways remain incredulous.

For speculation's sake, a battle between Gene Tunney and Georges Carpentier, say in London, might prove as good a box office attraction as a Tunney-Risiko bout in this country.

Regardless of Carpentier's worth as a fighter he has more color than the present pack of challengers and a couple of dubs of color

COAST LEAGUERS TO OPEN THREE-GAME SERIES WITH COLORED MEN TOMORROW

A major league baseball club in every respect, but which doesn't pastime in the big-top only because its members happen to be gentlemen of color, invades the stamping ground of the Portland Pacific Coast league squad here tomorrow afternoon for the first of what will be a three-game series at the Orange County Fair grounds. The Philadelphia Hillsdale Giants, champion negro team of the world, need no introduction here or elsewhere and their presence should guarantee a heavy turnout of Orange county fandom. Every game of the series will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

All of the Giants handle the bludgeon with plenty of familiarity and when runs are needed they usually get them. The colored team has wintered in Los Angeles for the last two years and has never failed to win a great majority of its games although its opposition has always been strong.

Holland Great Pitcher

"Speed" Holland, who throws the fastest ball in the game, they say, will probably draw the turret assignment Friday although the Giants may save their fast-ball king for Saturday and Sunday and start Flournoy, a gifted left-hander, or Cooper, a sterling right hander. Holland whistles them down the alley a mile a minute and the Beavers, unaccustomed to speed at this time of year, may have their troubles solving his "swift."

Warfield, a talented second baseman, and Beckwith, a shortstop, who is advertised as the Babe Ruth of the colored race and the chap who hits 'em from town to town, are two Giants who will be watched with particular interest during the series.

Cole Gets Nod

Bert Cole, Portland's crafty southpaw ace, will start the Friday engagement, Manager Ernie Johnson indicated today. He won't go the route, of course, because it is too early in the season for any pitcher to work nine rounds but Cole is fit for four or five spasms. Either Johnny Couch or Elmer Ponder, both right handers, will take up where Cole leaves off.

Johnson plans no change in the lineup which he used against "Rube" Ellis' Orange County club last Sunday. Jim Keecey will be at first base, "Siggy" Sigafoos at second, Fritz Knothe at short and Ike Davis at third. Elmer Smith, "Skeets" Bigbee and Dave Barbee will be in the suburbs and Eddie Ainsmith and Tony Rego will be

LOCAL COLLEGE PLAYERS BEGIN BALL PRACTICE

The first workout of the season was held by the Santa Ana Junior college baseball squad on the Poly diamond yesterday with only 11 candidates reporting. Coach Clyde Cook expects about 20 out for the team by the close of the week, however.

Several of the players are back from last year's team and others have played in high schools.

Coach Cook, however, is faced with the problem of developing a new battery as Milton Chaffee, pitcher, and Captain Henrik Van Rensselaer, catcher, both were graduated last year. Prospects for the mound assignment are William Bratmiller and Russell Kokx. Harry Van Gorkum, manager, is also playing on the team and he is trying out for catcher.

Manley Knight, third baseman and Fred McMillen, shortstop, both lettermen from last year were in suit yesterday.

Candidates include William Bratmiller, Walter Chandler, Gareld Edwards, Royce Edson, Russell Kokx, Manley Knight, Pete Lehr, Fred McMillen, Eric Reihau, Rod Smiley and Harry Van Gorkum.

Three of the games in the conference will be played away from home and two will be on the local diamond. The opening game of the Western division will not be held until April 21, against Pasadena, which will come here for the tussle. A number of practice games probably will be scheduled by the Dons as soon as arrangement can be completed.

The conference schedule has been fixed similar to that in basketball with the colleges divided into two sections, the Eastern and the Western divisions. Teams will play at opposite colleges than in basketball.

The Santa Ana schedule follows: April 21—Pasadena at Santa Ana; April 28—Santa Ana at Compton; May 5—Glendale at Santa Ana; May 12—Santa Ana at Long Beach; May 19—Santa Ana at Fullerton.

on the TRAIL of BIG LEAGUERS

FORT MYERS, Fla.—The Philadelphia Athletics lined up for their second exhibition game today against the Baltimore International league club. In their first game yesterday the Athletics beat the Phillies, 14 to 8.

SAN ANTONIO.—After looking over the Detroit Tigers, President E. S. Barnard of the American league predicted this year's race would not be a walkaway for the New York Yankees.

TAMPA, Fla.—Before leaving for Avon Park, where the Washington Senators play the St. Louis Cardinals today, President Clark Griffith said the Senators looked every inch a pennant contender.

BRADENTON, Fla.—Hoping to reverse yesterday's defeat by the St. Louis Cardinals, the Boston Red Sox engaged the Philadelphia Phillies in an exhibition game here today. Bagg defensive play by the Red Sox contributed to their 8 to 1 loss to the Cardinals.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—A light workout was scheduled today for the St. Louis Browns in preparation for their two opening exhibition games with the Cincinnati Reds here Saturday and Sunday. Arnold Kauff, a young infielder from Long Beach, Calif., probably will be sent to Tulsa or Muskogee.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—In a practice game yesterday the Brooklyn regulars made 16 hits and beat the Yannisians, 12 to 6.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—All doubt as to Babe Ruth's intention to give up home run hitting for placing hitting has been dismissed by the slugger himself. "I don't want to be a 400 hitter if I can hit 61 home runs," Babe said.

SHREVEPORT, La.—The Chicago White Sox will meet the Shreveport Texas league club in their first exhibition game here Friday.

PASO ROBLES, Calif.—Well pleased with the showing of the Pittsburgh pitchers in practice, Manager Bush said today he was anxious to see them in actual games.

A FALSE ALARM
CLEVELAND, March 8.—"A fireman may do many things besides putting out flammations, but he is no pinch-hitter for Mr. Stork," so saying Capt. J. E. Reynolds filed complaint against Jack Holt of this city, charging that when his company answered an alarm they found the defendant inflamed but no fire. Holt told the judge that he had put in the alarm when attempts to get a doctor or midwife were unsuccessful. Investigation showed that Holt's wife was not in urgent need of medical attention. "Twenty dollars and costs—next case."

The indoor tennis championships of the United States in men's singles and doubles start Saturday in the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York City.

Critical eyes will be turned upon the contestants, nor will the scrutiny be confined to the established stars, for this year the selections committee of the U.S.L.T.A. has a new problem in picking a Davis Cup team.

The time is past when the United States can depend upon a "Big Four," or even a "Big Three," to protect its tennis laurels. The laurels and the Davis Cup are flown to France, and there is no "Big Four," nor even a "Big Three," to fetch them back.

Youth is going to have its big chance this year, and there will be no better opportunity to catch the eye of the powers that be than is furnished by the indoor championships.

Even before the French walked away with our outdoor championships, they were winning the indoor ones. Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Rene LaCoste will not be here this year, so there will be an excellent chance for some American player to come through.

Borotra won the indoor singles title of the United States in 1925 and again in 1927. In 1926, Rene LaCoste won, with Borotra as runner-up. Brugnon was the defeated finalist last year. Thus, in three successive years, only one American—Fred Anderson in 1925—succeeded in surviving the semi-final round of the national indoor championships.

And for the two years previous to the French invasion, it was Vinnie Richards, now a more or less despised pro, who was champion.

There will be doubles matches as well as singles. The French team of Borotra and Brugnon are the present champions. It is all very sad.

However, with France engaged in preparing to defend the Davis Cup and the various European titles, her stars are staying home this time. Borotra, Brugnon and Boussus were making a world tour when the French Lawn Tennis Federation suddenly ordered them back to Paris.

When the question of tennis supremacy is considered, there is just one consolation for the United States. Our women players, by and large, are far better than those of France. While the Frenchmen hold all the worth-while championships of the tennis world, the game among French women has been somewhat of a decline since Suzanne Lenglen turned professional and then retired for want of worlds to conquer.

The best evidence of this is the recent raking of the "first ten" women players by the French Lawn Tennis federation. Suzanne, of course, was not eligible. "Didi" Vlasto married a Greek and thus also became ineligible. Helene Costantavlos gave up serious tennis and now plays just enough to keep her weight down.

Accordingly, the ranking committee had a hard time finding ten names! It finally included the veteran Mlle. Conquet, who has quit playing singles altogether!

spring training camps. The popular "prexy" was deeply impressed with the constellation of baseball talent gathered together by Tom Turner, Roy Mack, et al, and predicted cautiously that they would "win" in the pennant race. Baseball presidents have to be conservative.

Williams was also complimentary of the Orange county fair grounds as a training camp site and was surprised at the bleacher space.

Ike Boone, the mighty man of swat, may be suffering from injuries but the big fellow can still rap that agate. He clobbered a few over the right field wall in practice yesterday and he had his eye on the ball again today.

Tomlin Due Today
Ed Tomlin, pitcher, was expected to reach town today but Johnson said he wouldn't expect him until Tomlin arrived.

Orlin Berry, 18-year-old catcher from Sawtelle, was one of the newcomers in camp. He is a husky kid, weighing about 180 pounds and being 6 feet tall, and his actions have impressed the railbirds.

Forty-five players are now in the Beaver camp and the well-known and justly feared ax will begin to drop with reckless abandon next week. The first cut will come next Wednesday and the rookies will be guttled one by one until only the prospective Cobbs, Ruths and Johnsons remain. Yannisian-regular games beginning next Monday will have much to tell as to which rookies stick on the squad.

INSULATION

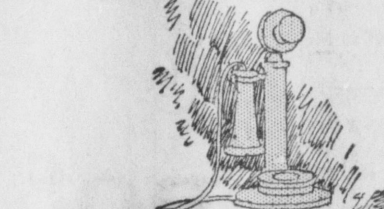

—and what it means to Your Home!

If heating plants were not scientifically constructed and properly insulated your heating bills would be enormous.

The manufacturers of refrigerators keep a corps of experts constantly busy just checking insulation.

The telephone is one of the best examples of insulation—its intricate parts and wires are well guarded.

WHEN Schumite, the fireproof plaster wall board is used in the walls and ceilings of your home you have a well insulated house — and insulation means everything.

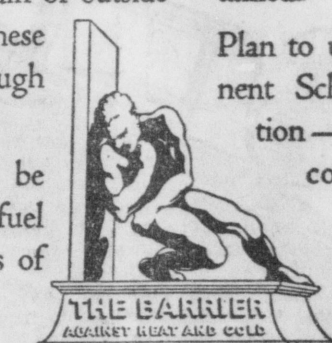

Refreshingly cool during the hottest summer weather—comfy and warm all winter—soundproof—each and every room restfully quiet—noise and din of outside traffic passes unnoticed—these are advantages obtained through the use of Schumite.

A big factor that should be considered is the saving of fuel — these solid, broad sheets of everlasting gypsum effectively resist transmission of heat.

Schumite can be sawed or cut like wood without danger of breakage—you have a complete smooth surfaced wall — an unbroken surface that will take any kind of covering—paint, paper or tint—beautiful and artistic effects can be obtained.

Plan to use this substantial and permanent Schumite in your next construction—you get Insulation and Beauty combined with real Economy —Your lumber dealer sells Schumite.

Rochester Doctor Achieves Remarkable Success With New Prescription for Piles

Rochester, N. Y. For many years it has been known that many so-called remedies for the relief or cure of Hemorrhoids or Piles were simply palliatives and give only temporary relief, while surgical operations, often adopted as a last resort, never removed the cause but simply the formation.

No man or woman need suffer another hour from any pain, soreness or distress arising from Hemorrhoids or Piles now that this wonderful prescription known as MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES can be obtained for a moderate price at any first-class drug store on the money back if dissatisfied plan.

Creosolium is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DEMOCRATS OF SOUTH DEMAND DRY CANDIDATE

BY EDWARD W. LEWIS

(Copyright, 1928, NEA Service, Inc.)
ATLANTA, Ga., March 8.—Temperance Democrats of nine southern states, meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla., this week, caused the first real flurry in Dixie party politics since William G. McAdoo announced he would not be a candidate for the presidential nomination.

Campaigns throughout the south to prevent nomination and election of a "wet" president are expected to follow the "pep" meeting. Added significance to conditions in the south came with the McAdoo endorsement of Senator Walsh, of Montana, for the Democratic nomination for president. The result of this in the south is not apparent.

Clarifies Atmosphere

Clarification of the political atmosphere was viewed as an outcome of the St. Petersburg dry meeting. Observers pointed out that the prohibition issue has been drawn definitely as a result of the gathering of the Anti-Saloon league, church and temperance society leaders.

Promises to bolt the party in the event of Governor Smith's nomination or that of Senator Reed or Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, were frequent at the convention. At another dry meeting of the week Smith was a target.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, president of the Indiana W. C. T. U., speaking before Tennessee members of the organization, characterized Smith as "the greatest Bolshevik that ever cursed the nation."

Exact strength of the New York governor in the south is variously estimated by political observers. In Alabama this week a series of struggles has started over the question of delegates to the Houston convention. There are surface indications of some bitterness against Smith.

The Senator George boom continued quietly with little surface opposition. The Georgian has considerable backing, especially in the tier of southeastern Atlantic coast states.

A Hoover-for-President club, started in North Carolina, coupled with the decision of Georgia Republicans to support him, led observers to believe inroads may be made in Lowden's avowed strength in southern Republican groups.

STATE TRAFFIC OFFICERS MUST RIDE CYCLES

Orange county state traffic officers, physically fit to ride motorcycles, will abandon their automobiles on April 1, and those who can not ride motorcycles will be asked for their resignations, according to an announcement made today by Henry Meehan, captain.

Meehan said he received these instructions from Los Angeles yesterday and had already notified some of the officers.

The order will mean the resignation of at least one officer, Dan D. Adams, it is believed. Adams has never ridden a motor and does not know how.

Joe Clever, San Juan Capistrano officer, who never has ridden a motor is learning how, it is said, and will be ready to ride on April 1.

Captain Meehan said that a number of officers were not riding motors at the present time because they had been injured in the past on them and were not physically fit. He stated that in order to determine who could ride, a disinterested physician would be called in to examine the men.

Meehan is under the impression, he declared, that all but four men would be put back on their motors by April 1.

Meehan himself has never ridden a motor on duty, he declared, but stated that he knew how and would go on as a motorcycle officer at the first of the month.

At the present time, there are eight officers patrolling the roads in automobiles. They are officers Barnhill, Chambers, Buer, Peterkin, Yoder, Meehan, Clever and Adams.

Those riding motors at the present time are Sawyer, Craig, Aldridge, Meyer and Stinson.

Adams, formerly a deputy sheriff, has been with the state department for more than a year.

To A Million Boys and Girls Between 17 and 70

The Automobile That Talks The Language That Only They Can Understand

FOR a million boys and girls, between seventeen and seventy, Reo builds the Wolverine.

For them, especially, because Reo knows that they want to swing up to country club porches with the dash of cavalry captains.

For them, especially, because Reo knows how they must be growing tired of seeing and driving just nickel-plate—just fancy headlights—just two-tone color jobs.

So Reo builds the Wolverine to talk the language that all true boys and girls can understand—language dealing with the important business of getting somewhere.

The Reo Wolverine steals its way into your heart as a star halfback steals his way into the heart of the coach. It starts fast—goes fast—has a wonderful change of pace—and it gets somewhere.

Yes, Reo builds the Wolverine to be the automobile all boys and girls have wished for.

Builds it to be an automobile such as no one ever expected to drive into his or her own garage for so low a F. O. B. price as $1195 or $1295.

Try it out—over any roads—in any company. You'll be very much surprised.

LIVELY RACE FOR ANAHEIM COUNCIL SEEN

ANAHEIM, March 8.—Efforts are being made, it was reported today, to unite all factions, critical of the present administration behind two candidates, yet to be chosen.

Outside of H. E. Axup, local insurance man, who declares that he is offering himself entirely independently, and the incumbents, Councilmen A. Curtis Case and L. E. Miller, no candidates have as yet filed notices of intention in the race for the council.

City Clerk E. B. Merritt, however, reports that a number of intention forms have been taken from his office but those who have taken these papers refuse to say that they have in mind offering themselves as candidates in the coming election.

Jacob Lakeman, a former member of the Anaheim police force and George W. Bruns, a South Palm street rancher, have both taken the required blanks from the city clerk's office.

The names of John Cook, J. J. Dwyer, John Brunworth and George Hamler, all former trustees, have been coupled with the others that have been current about the possible developments in the city council race, but little has been found to justify these reports.

So far, Merritt is the only candidate in the field for the post of city clerk, a job he has held for the past 28 years.

Charles A. Boege has filed his intention of seeking re-election as city treasurer and David Jessurun, vice president of the Anaheim National bank, has announced his intention of being an opponent of Boege.

William A. Wallace has secured a blank and he is expected to file his papers soon.

LA HABRA

Mrs. Steve Inns has accepted a position in the clerical department of the First National bank in Brea. Mr. and Mrs. Inns will move there soon. Mrs. Inns formerly was employed at the Citizens bank here before the consolidation.

Of interest here is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Vivian Olson, daughter of I. S. Olson, of Los Angeles, to Laurence Pitman, also of Los Angeles. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. Miss Muriel Olson acted as maid of honor for her sister.

Thirty persons were present at the meeting of the Men's brotherhood of the Methodist church at the meeting Tuesday evening. It was decided to change the meeting of the organization from the first Tuesday of the month to the third Tuesday. After the general routine of business, Miss Effie Siebe favored with a piano solo. The Rev. Graham C. Hunter, of the Presbyterian church, Fullerton, gave a talk on Rumania.

NEWPORT BEACH, March 8.—The Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce will join with the chambers of commerce of other coast cities in asking that Los Angeles to San Diego stages be routed along the coast, it was decided at a meeting of directors of the chamber here. The session was held at the Southern Seas club. K. I. Fulton, chairman of the transportation committee of the organization, will represent the body at a meeting in Long Beach in the near future, when the stage matter will be discussed.

Signs advertising Newport Beach were discussed at the directors' meeting. It was advocated that several signs be placed in various sections of Southern California directing attention to the recreational and climatic advantages of the harbor district.

Arrangements for the next membership meeting of the body were completed. The meeting is to be held at the Newport Beach pavilion March 15. Dancing, motion pictures and special entertainment events will feature the meeting. There will be no banquet. H. L. Sherman, chairman of the entertainment committee, is in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

Collegiate week will be observed in the harbor district from March 30 to April 9, it was announced by G. C. Macleod, secretary.

An Easter week celebration is being planned by the chamber. Special events, including water sports on the bay, dancing and other attractions, are being arranged.

LAGUNA FIRE DEPARTMENT TO BE OPERATED BY CITY; BATHING SUIT LAW DRAFTED

LAGUNA BEACH, March 8.—Discussion of the ordinance by which the fire department will come under the jurisdiction of the city instead of remaining a volunteer organization kept the city council busy until after 11 o'clock last night, with the ordinance going to second reading after many members of the department had expressed themselves.

The question at issue was whether the city should appoint the chief with tenure of office secure, or whether the election of the chief should be left to the department members. It was finally adjusted by leaving it to the members to recommend, with the council making the appointment.

A communication from the Women's club asking the council to pass an ordinance prohibiting bathers from parading the streets in bathing suits resulted in instructions to Attorney Vernon W. Hunt to draft an ordinance. Councilman George S. Johnston had previously proposed the matter and finally won a reluctant second from Frank B. Champion.

What limit to place on the size of lots in subdivisions called for considerable argument, but was left over until a later meeting. An ordinance concerning fire zones and building zone likewise went to second reading, both by title only. An ordinance prohibiting the discharge of fireworks except in certain districts was read, and a resolution appointing an election board for the municipal election was adopted. This places Frank S. Brown, Ed. Hofer, Robt. Parker and James S. Murphy in charge of the election.

OREGON MAN SEEKS NEWPORT RELATIVES

NEWPORT BEACH, March 8.—Plans for a new hotel in this city were uncovered here yesterday and a mystery was started at the same time.

The hotel plans were revealed by D. S. Southmayd, of Portland, Ore., who came here to visit his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. Ashby. The mystery started when he was unable to find his relatives.

According to Southmayd, Mr. and Mrs. Ashby came to Newport about six months ago to build a hotel. He heard from several times and finally decided to visit in Newport Beach as the guest of his uncle and aunt.

Southmayd has been in Newport Beach for nearly a week and diligent searching has failed to reveal the whereabouts of his relatives. The youth is confident that Mr. and Mrs. Ashby are in the city and that they are going to build a hotel here.

Yesterday, he appealed to the chamber of commerce to assist him in finding his relatives.

MARCH 8, 1928

Many men will indulge in smoking today. This is deduced by our astrologer from the position of Mercury in the Perihelion, and the Epiglottis in the Concentric. Very simple, when you know how it's done. Housewives may therefore take note that tobacco odor may be removed from the lace curtains by giving them a light coat of Varnish—and we have the Varnishes, for floor, furniture, autos, and so on! That's that!

Chiropractic Will Get You Well

Your body at one time functioned normally, and if given the chance will do so again. Pinched nerves are the cause of most human ailments, and by removing this pressure we are able to restore permanent relief from your sickness or disease.

Why does your foot fall asleep when you cross your legs? Simply because you are producing pressure upon the great sciatic nerve, thus cutting off the nerve force to that extremity. A spinal nerve pressure acts much in the same way. It is difficult to walk when your feet are numb, likewise the organs or parts of your body will not function properly when they do not receive the proper amount of nerve energy.

SMARTLY TAILORED OUTFITS

Youth is expressed in the lines of a light green sheer flannel.

Geometric lines make a blue kashine tweed as modern as it is charming.

By HENRI BENDEL
For NEA Service

NEW YORK, March 8—American women are accepting and are charmed by feminine frills and furbelows for afternoon and evening wear. But they are demanding and getting tailored models for their runabout frocks for street wear until tea-time.

The reason behind this preference is that American women are essentially active. Moreover many of them work—either at a vocation or avocation. They have not the tradition of long lounging hours behind them that makes the French women always take more kindly to softness of lines and frills.

So I find myself making quite neatly tailored one-piece frocks for early spring wear—for those first days that the coat is shed.

All of Them Woollens

They are all woollens, incidentally. This is a departure, for in the past few years women have worn suits or silk dresses. But woollens have yielded to the demand for sheer, soft teauty. Some of the spring homespuns are as featherweight as Iceland wool sweaters; some of the tweeds are soft and pliable as satin-backed crepe; wool georgette is nearly as sheer as silk.

Spring models of runabout frocks favor the one-piece mode; they introduce new collar ideas; the sleeves are apt to be quite individual and different; and all skirts show some reasonable width for easy walking—whether it comes from pleats, godets or plain gathers.

For colors, grey is exceedingly good. Blues, as usual, come forth for spring but the preference for blues comes in off-shades, either in grey-blue or one with a purplish tone. Tans and browns have exceptional beauty in their soft richness this year. But it looks as if green will be one of the favorites.

A Germaine Creation
Pale green, in a new sheer, silky flannel, gives the effect of a jacket suit in the second model, with cute metal ball buttons straightening its diagonal closing. A band of a darker shade of green on its hem and cuffs is the only touch of decoration. This is a Germaine creation and the rolling collar that stands fairly high in the back of the neck is really a concession to American women's demand for tailored effects. For Paris really prefers frills this season.

A severely tailored costume that shows a modernistic note is shown in the blue kashine tweed. Here in the flare of the collar, in the dip of the yoke and the rounding of the front skirt yoke we see the geometric design influence. Clever, simple, and charming is this interpretation of the modern trend.

This frock has no back collar—just the front flaring revers. The sleeves are one-buttoned and a simple belt of self material extends around a low waistline.

An appropriate hat is shown in a smart new low-slung model of red and grey velvet, a Reboux design.

"I WANT TO DO WHAT—" BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 8.—Fred and Joe Fanara are inseparable brothers. Their actions are always unanimous. Even the sea of matrimony found them in strict accord and when the venture landed on the rocks it did so for both. At the same time they became engaged in Paris; brought the girls to America and got married; received the news that the girls had tricked them to avoid the immigration laws; were deserted and obtained annulments from Supreme Court Justice Dunne.

Music Offers Charm to Woman's Club Members At Y. M. C. A.

Santa Ana's Y. M. C. A. building proved a most popular meeting place for the Santa Ana Woman's club, whose members turned out in full force for their first March meeting in one of the basement rooms of the building.

Mrs. M. C. Williams opened the session in her capacity of president, and after a few brief business matters, the meeting was turned over to the program chairman, Mrs. C. H. Stanley, who had planned an interval of music.

Miss Leonora Tompkins, one of the club's associate members, aided her in her plans, not only by playing the accompaniments for a group of lovely songs by Marjorie Warner Moore, (Mrs. Chauncey Moore) but by presenting two of her talented piano pupils in solo numbers, Miss Lois Allen, a student at Santa Ana high school, and Master George Miles, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Miles, and a grandson of one of the members of the Woman's club, Mrs. H. D. Miles.

Marjorie Warner Moore is also a daughter of the club, for her mother, Mrs. E. G. Warner, is prominent in its affairs. Mrs. Moore is making an extended visit here in her girlhood home, with her tiny daughter, Sally, and they will be joined in the near future by Lieutenant Moore, upon his return from service in the Philippines.

With the resumption of the business meeting, Mrs. Williams introduced several new members, and then called upon Mrs. James Clark, Mrs. Charles Hoeft and Mrs. C. F. Crose for reports of recent board meetings and club conferences.

Mrs. Clark gave an interesting account of the Civic League Reciprocity day at Balboa, and the league's attractive clubhouse remodeled from an old building.

Mrs. Hoeft's talk dealt with the executive board meeting of Orange county federation, held recently at Laguna Beach, and Mrs. Crose told of the Newport Ebell Receptivity day. In the course of the interesting talks, it was disclosed that county clubs had donated three dozen of the comfortable officers' camp chairs to the disabled veterans of San Fernando hospital, making their gift through Mrs. A. P. Nelson, whose club work and interests are centered in the veterans.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Members of the Women's Home Missionary society of the First Methodist church opened their meeting Wednesday afternoon with the singing of a hymn and prayer by Mrs. A. M. Leonard and Mrs. W. B. Snow, president. Mrs. W. F. Kistinger, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting, and Mrs. George Milner, treasurer, who has missed a number of meetings recently because of illness, read the financial report.

At the opening of the program, Mrs. W. W. Brandebury led the devotions. Mrs. R. I. Matthews, jubilee birthday secretary, then took charge of the program which was based on James Watt Raines' book, "The Land of Saddlebags."

The reception of new members was postponed until a later meeting. Mrs. Matthews gave a sketch of the southern mountaineer, then Mrs. Ray Brown read, very beautifully, the ballad "Barbara Allen."

The rest of the time was given over to sketches describing homes supported by the Woman's Home Missionary society for the southern mountaineers in the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and North and South Carolina. These sketches were given by Mrs. E. M. Mills, Miss Blanch Collins, Mrs. W. B. Snow, Mrs. T. P. McKee and Mrs. F. C. Schweitzer. Mrs. E. M. Mills added the interesting bit of information that the design on the back of the souvenir, which had been passed out, was the photograph of a quilt owned by Mrs. W. H. C. Goode, national president of the organization.

Several of Mrs. Emma Keller's warm friends in earlier days in Viborg, South Dakota, planned a happy affair yesterday as a compliment to her birthday, gathering at her pretty home on Lowell street, for a birthday supper.

Mrs. Keller and her house-guest, Mrs. Hattie Wintersteen of Sioux Falls, and Miss Naomi Keller, staged the first celebration of the day, by motoring to Laguna Beach, where they were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Strommerson, Mrs. Keller's son-in-law and daughter.

Upon their return to Santa Ana, accompanied by their luncheon hosts, they found the Viborg friends assembled, and everything in readiness for a picnic supper and an evening of lively reminiscences of earlier associations.

In addition to a number of attractive birthday gifts, the guests showered Mrs. Keller with flowers in a variety of lovely color and form, until the home was a veritable posy garden. A delicious supper was served, and the hostess contributed an angelfood cake, which her daughter, Miss Naomi Keller, had adorned with flowers in lavender icing.

In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Victor Olsen and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hendrickson and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Hendrickson and family, Mrs. Streman, Miss Ruby Streman, Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. James Christopherson of Viborg, who have spent the winter here, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown of Pasadena, together with the birthday honoree, her house-guest, Mrs. Wintersteen and Mr. and Mrs. Strommerson and Miss Naomi Keller.

Santa Ana Selected To Head New Mexico Music Federation

The latest bulletin of the National Federation of Music clubs, carried a picture of Clarence Gustlin, former Santa Ana pianist, in connection with the announcement of his being elected to the presidency of the New Mexico federation, succeeding Mrs. Adamson.

As chairman of opera for the western division, Mr. Gustlin is well known throughout the southwest and his musical activities have been greatly appreciated by the clubs. He is now established in Las Vegas, New Mexico where he has a most interesting shop devoted to music supplies and the artistic rugs, potteries, basketry and silver of that section of the country. He is, of course, keeping up his music classes, and in addition to teaching, is working for the furtherance of the Las Vegas Summer festival, one of the biggest musical events in the district.

Mrs. Gustlin is again at their Santa Ana home, 816 North Main street, after an extended visit in Las Vegas, and is planning to rejoin Mr. Gustlin there again in late May.

'CHASE RASCALS OUT' IS REED'S JACKSONIAN CRY

BY PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, March 8.—The campaign message of Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, is an appeal for peace in Democratic ranks, coupled with the old Jacksonian cry against the Republicans:

"Chase the rascals out."
In an interview with the United Press before he left on his tour of the west, Reed propounded the following doctrine for Democracy:

Restore Self Government
"If the people are to remain free, local self government and the sovereignty of the states must be preserved."

"The federal power should be brought within the limits of not only the letter but the spirit of the constitution."

"The march of centralization must be arrested."

"Government by boards and bureaucracies must cease."

"The tall, lithe, white haired disciple of typically American theories and beliefs then laid down his severe demands for constructive changes, which he intimated would be made if he were elected president."

Honest Administration
"The first is for the honest administration of government," he said. Others are:

"The swift and sure punishment of all public plunderers, bribe mongers and other malefactors."

"Equalization of the burden of taxation."

"Repeal of all laws creating special privileges."

"Dismissal of an army of spies, snoopers, sneaks and informers."

"Liberation of honest business from oppressive interference by government agents."

Card Concern In Germany Prospers

BERLIN, March 8.—German manufacturers of playing cards have had their share in the general business boom of last year.

The Stralsunder Spielkarten factories, the largest establishment of its kind in Germany, for the year 1927 recorded 264,398 goldmark net profits from which a 15 per cent dividend, or three per cent more than the year before, will be paid to the company's shareholders. The bulk of the production of the German playing cards industry is consumed within the country.

NOT SO HAPPY AS IT LOOKED

The news dispatches heralded the address of the chairman of America's delegation to the Havana conference, Charles Evans Hughes, as a great victory for America's position at that conference. But it appears, as the facts are brought out more clearly, that it was simply a victory of power over those who did not believe that our position was right. The contention by Mr. Hughes that America should have the right to intervene regardless of the will of the nation, was not one that could possibly appeal to the sense of justice of smaller nations.

There can be no right of one nation to interfere in the internal affairs of another nation without the corresponding right, with the reversal of conditions for other nations.

To contend, for example, that America has the right to interfere in Nicaragua logically places an individual where he must defend the right of Nicaragua to interfere in like manner in the United States. This we all would resent. For us to say that we are better able to judge, that our civilization is better, that we have higher standards to which they must come, giving us the power of judge and executioner is untenable if we grant national sovereignty or even recognize that there is a difference, and a real difference, between the Latin or the Indian civilization and the Anglo-Saxon.

Mr. Drew Pearson, writing in the Christian Science Monthly for February 29, gives some light on what took place at this conference that is well worth reading and undoubtedly more reliable than the swift dispatches that came at the hour of adjournment when all was hurried. Mr. Pearson says:

"The story of the opposition to the policy of the United States at the plenary session of February 18 never reached the North American press, in any great detail, due to the fact that not many American newspapermen understood Spanish and because the lateness of the session made it impossible for the cables to get it to New York before Sunday morning newspapers had closed their presses.

"The Committee on Public International Law had agreed that after more than a week of discussion that it would be impossible to take any action on the subject of intervention and that the question should be postponed until the next conference five years hence.

"When this report was read to the plenary session, Laurentino Olascoaga, head of the Argentine delegation, following Honorio Pueyrredon's resignation, jumped to his feet and reminded the conference that Argentina admitted the right of no nation to intervene in the affairs of another.

"This precipitated a general demand for action. The delegates of Mexico, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Guatemala, Ecuador, Colombia, and Salvador bobbed up one after the other to say that they favored the banning of intervention.

"The climax came when Eduardo Alvarez of San Salvador got to the floor. Waving his arm dramatically at the United States delegation, he said: 'It's all right for you big countries to talk about postponing the question of intervention. You don't have to worry about having your territory invaded. But we do. It is us, the smaller countries, that have to protect our independence.'

"Mr. Hughes saw that the crisis which he had hoped might be shelved indefinitely had come. For the first time, perhaps, he felt and understood the full force of Latin-American feeling.

"Now, however, Mr. Hughes saw that the time had come for action. Emphatically and frankly, he bared the fact that no matter what resolutions were passed by the conference, the United States must always reserve the right to intervene in Latin-American territory for the protection of American citizens and their property. He said that difficulty was not with the United States policy, but with the chaotic conditions which at times arise in some Latin-American countries.

"There was no reply. To the Latin thought Mr. Hughes had put an end definitely to any hope that Pan-Americanism might be politically co-operative."

EUROPE'S MAD MAN BREAKS FORTH

Germans in the Tyrol region which was Italy's spoils at the end of the World War have suffered more hardships and oppression at the hands of their Italian rulers than we in America have heard of, because of the rigorous censorship imposed by the Italian dictator. A year or two ago, however, we heard that the people of the region who have German names were ordered to change their names to Italian names. That act alone suggests the intolerable pettiness which Mussolini has exercised over the conquered people, a pettiness which penetrates deep into their lives and customs, resulting in sores in their minds and hearts and to their pride which are never allowed to heal or even cease to hurt. Many of their neighbors in Europe sympathize with them and that sympathy, in turn, has become sufficiently unbearable to Mussolini so that every now and then he must needs break forth in his role of mad man of Europe.

Says the upstart sword rattler: "Let Germany remember that Italy is ready, if necessary, to carry her banners beyond her present frontiers, but back, never." He has announced his intention of inaugurating a policy of "two eyes for an eye and a whole set of teeth for the loss of only one tooth."

"We will apply rigorously, methodically, obstinately, with a system of cold tenacity which is typical of Fascism, all our laws to the inhabitants of the Upper Adige. I refer both to those this chamber has voted and those it will vote in the future.

"We will render that region Italian because it is Italian, both historically and geographically. The boundary of the Brenner Pass is a frontier traced by the infallible hand of God."

With such a spirit ruling Italy we can be assured that existence in the Tyrol is difficult. There is no spirit of conciliation, no sympathy, no attempt to preserve peace at the sacrifice of a tiny iota of prestige.

We have come to have considerable sympathy for the diplomats of Europe who stand between the extreme of nationalist feeling of some of their own people and the pacification of Europe. There is always the temptation to appeal to the junkers of their country and receiving their plaudits, attain popularity. The conciliatory spirit jeopardizes the political life of the diplomat. Mussolini has received the plaudits of his junkers, but he is a traitor to the peace of Europe.

HASN'T HELPED

When the Federal Reserve act was before congress in 1913 it was urged that one of the benefits to be derived was that the funds heretofore diverted from commercial uses to the uses of New York stock brokers would be greatly decreased.

The old law permitted a part of the reserves of banks in reserve cities to be deposited in New York banks and counted as cash. The New York banks paid the country banks interest on these deposits. Since the volume of trading on the exchange was somewhat dependent on the funds in New York banks available to brokers the deposits of people throughout the country were used in stock speculation in New York. The bill provides that the cash reserves of member banks was to be kept either in the vaults of the member bank or in the Federal Reserve bank, but it reduced very materially the percentage of cash reserve to be kept by member banks.

These banks have still been sending enormous amounts for deposits to New York banks either as deposits upon which they would receive interest or to be loaned for the account of the member banks on call. The call money is mainly used by stock brokers in their business. There has been little decrease and in fact at times a great increase in the deposits thus made by country banks. Now comes a resolution by Senator La Follette to request the Federal Reserve Board to take steps to decrease this amount.

There are a number of ways in which the Federal Reserve Board may discourage the practice, by a more careful investigation of the collateral accepted for loans offered for rediscount and by carefully restricting the discounting of direct notes of the member banks who keep large deposits for "call" in New York. The enormous amount of United States securities has itself been the means of increasing the available funds in New York through member banks; for this there is little remedy except a decrease by redemption of United States securities.

We are all interested because it is the funds of the country depositors which are thus used and because as stock speculation increases through the use of our deposits the funds available for ordinary commercial credits is less.

Call money rates were higher in February, 1928, than any time in 1927, except the latter part of December.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

I FORGOT

Of all the exasperating things a child can say is, "I forgot."

"How did you come to get such a bad mark?"

"O, I forgot my homework and she took off ten.

And I forgot about the decimal points and she took off ten for that. I forgot to carry the extra one so she counted me wrong. I was right, all the time, only she wouldn't count it."

"Right all the time and she wouldn't count it. That's a strange teacher. Show me here on your paper just where you were right and the teacher gave you no credit for it."

"O, she said it was wrong because I forgot those points. I know them. But I forgot."

Then there is the errand to the store. "Did you ask Mr. Blutz to send me those carrots this noon?"

"Gee, mom, I forgot all about them."

"But you didn't forget to go to the store to get your bat, did you? You can always remember what you want to remember. Now you go right after those carrots and carry them home yourself. I'm waiting for them. And you'll stay in this afternoon and do every one of those examples over again and get them right."

"O, mom, I gotta practice with the team."

"Not until your memory improves," said mother firmly.

So he takes as long as he can to carry the carrots home and he takes as long as he can to find his books, to get a pencil to sharpen the pencil, break the point of it and sharpen it again, to get the right kind of paper. "Can I go down to the corner to get a sheet of paper? I haven't the right kind. All right. She won't take it that's all. I'll have all my work for nothing."

Dinner time comes and he has finished the sheet of examples. "Show it to me," says mother wearily; preparing dinner and driving a ten year old ahead in the narrow path he should tread, is a wearying task. "You left out the decimal points again."

"O gee, I forgot. I was going to put them in all at once. Then I forgot."

"You mean to tell me that you don't put in the decimal point until you have finished all the work? That's ridiculous. I never heard of."

"That's the best way. You do them quicker that way."

"Yes, you forget. That's a very quick way. But after dinner tonight you're going to do that sheet of number work the right way. With your mind on it. I don't care if you never do another thing you do that job right. You're going to learn to remember your job."

It is hard on mother but she is right. Children remember what they want to remember and forget easily, like the rest of us, what they want to forget. If a thing is important to them they will not forget it.

But play is the business of childhood and work comes late. We can understand the forgetting but we have to set our faces against it and establish a habit of remembering duty. It is hard, but what would you do? It's life.

He May Live, But He'll Never Look the Same

More Truth Than Poetry
By James J. Montague

WHAT EVERY WOMAN KNOWS

When a college Professor maintains, in a statement, I lately have read, That women have many more brains Than the men whom they usually wed, I make no attempt, as some males well might do, To bring on his statement discredit, I know in my heart it is perfectly true, So I murmur: "Old fellow, you've said it!"

But when he remarks that a maid Should not wait on the whim of her beaux But should never be shy or afraid When in love with a man, to propose; I see that the speaker has tarried so long In the dust-laden halls of his college, That his slant on the facts of existence is wrong And he's just a bit weak in the knowledge.

When a girl sets her heart on a man With a word, or a smile or a look, Let him struggle as hard as he can He is caught like a fish on a hook. And he fancies, when clad in his afternoon coat With his neck firmly held by a halter, His life to her service henceforth to devote, It was he that led her to the altar!

He suggests that young women propose This person who lives in his books; There is never a flapper but knows That her clothes and her smiles and her looks And her baby like ways and her worshipping voice And the manifold wiles that she uses, Remove from her victim all power of choice, She can land any man that she chooses!

Dr. Crane's Friendly Talk

By Dr. Frank Crane

THE LAST LEAF

About the last leaf has fallen from the noxious plant of human slavery. This institution was called by John Wesley "the sum of all villainies."

It has its roots deep in the past. The Egyptians made slaves of the Israelites and it was the custom of every nation in ancient times to make slaves of their victims or their prisoners.

We commonly think of ancient Greece as a Republic, but it was only a republic to a few free men superimposed upon a vast body of helots.

The Romans also, had their slaves, and it was the custom of the Barbary pirates to enslave the captive Christians.

The United States went through a tremendous cataclysm, the fundamental cause of which was the existence of human slavery. Abraham Lincoln gained the title of the Great Emancipator by his decree freeing the slaves in this country.

History presents a new warfare between the human conscience and the institution of slavery. The gain has been slow, but conscience has won.

Now in Sierra Leone, Africa, all of the slaves are free. This occurred with the opening of the New Year. Nearly two hundred and fifty thousand domestic slaves were made the political equals of their masters.

This was largely due to Lady Simon, wife of Sir John Simon, a British statesman.

That many of the slaves are bewildered and do not know what to do with their freedom, but will go on serving their old masters, shows that emancipation or liberty does not come from the submerged masses up, but comes from the free classes downward.

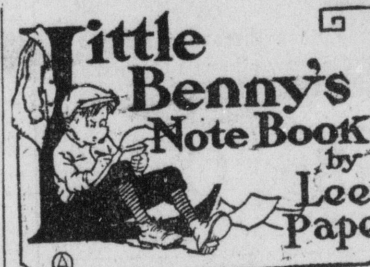

It will naturally take a long while and it will require generations yet to come for a race that has been enslaved to accustom itself to liberty. That they were not prepared for liberty goes without saying, but the best preparation for freedom is freedom, just as the best cure for democracy is more democracy.

Slowly but surely this old world is climbing up into the light. Those who stand upon the shore can hardly observe the process of the tides, but if you go away and come back after a few hours you can see that the level of the waters has changed. So in history a too close view of the present reveals so many evils that we do not think the world is progressing; but we only have to look over history as a whole to see how it advances.

Notice how civilization has abolished slavery, dueling, gladiatorial games, torture, and other evils. It is hard to resist the conclusion that, on the whole, the world is getting better.

Nobody hadn't bin late for skool so far this week on account of not wanting to miss the big reward Miss Kitty promised us if nobody wasent late for a whole week, and this morning the first bell had rang and everybody was at their desk except Puds Simkins, Miss Kitty saying, Well its too bad, but it looks as though Charles Simkins were relapsing into his old habits jest in time to spoil the big serprize that I was planning for you.

Us fellows thinking, G, darn that guy.

Wich jest then Leroy Shooester started to make motions at me and point out the window, and I looked out and there was Puds Simkins running across the skool-yard, and jest then the 2nd bell rang, making him late, and Puds stopped on account of being all out of breath and discouraged at the same time, and I quick raised my hand saying, There he is now, Miss Kitty, G wizz he looks sick, can me and Leroy Shooester go down and see if he's sick?

Why my goodness, Miss Kitty sed. And she looked out the window, saying, He really does look strange, he has his hand to his side, yes you may go down and see.

Wich me and Leroy quick did, me saying, Wats a matter, Jeds, are you sick? and Puds sed, No, Im jest out of breath for a while, and Leroy Shooester sed, Go on, certeny your sick, if you aint sick your late and the class wont get the serprize, go on home and tell your mother your sick.

Aw gosh, she'll make me go to bed if I do, I dont want to go to bed without feeling sick, Puds sed, and I sed, Well maybe this will make you feel sick.

And I gave him a short punch in the stummick, being his biggest and weakest part, him saying, Ootch, ootch, gosh now I do feel like going home.

Wich he did, and we went back and told Miss Kitty he was sick with enuff strength to go home, so nobody hasent bin late yet.

CURRENT COMMENT

By CHESTER H. ROWELL

WASHINGTON dispatches on March 4 speculated on which of fifteen men would be inaugurated President one year from that day. The fifteen were—Republicans: Hoover, Dawes, Lowden, Willis, Hughes, Curtis, Longworth, and Watson; Democrats: Smith, Walsh, Reed, Ritchie, Donahay, George and Robinson. Add Coolidge and you have sixteen, who have been "mentioned."

AS BACK-ROOM possibilities, if the nomination were again to be made that way, not one of these names is beyond consideration unless it be Hughes and Coolidge, who have withdrawn. But as figures in the popular mind, practically all of them are negligible. The people have accepted the declinations of Hughes and Coolidge. Longworth will not even be a candidate in his own state, and will receive no votes anywhere else. Watson would be conceivable only in a particularly secluded back room. Willis and Curtis are scarcely known, outside of their own states, and their candidacies are not taken seriously there. This leaves, on the Republican side, Hoover, Lowden and Dawes, with the prospects of an early elimination of Lowden in favor of Dawes.

ON THE Democratic side, eliminations are not quite so easy. If the Democrats cannot nominate Smith, they will be afraid to nominate Ritchie or Reed, who are also "wets." The leader pro tempore of the other faction is Walsh, who will probably not be the final choice, though, except for his age, he would be a good one. This means that, in the Democratic convention it will be either Smith or some one selected by the delegates themselves, without preliminary choice by the people. In that case, it might be anybody. In fact, if Smith is eliminated by anything but his own act, or even by that if it is a last resort to escape a deadlock, it might as well be nobody.

THIS position of President of the United States is the mightiest office on earth. It fills, in the greatest of nations, the combined functions which are elsewhere divided between king or president, as "Chief of state," and prime minister, as "head of the government," with more power and independence than both of them together. The President, besides his enormous legal powers, is leader of the people and often dictator of Congress. He is the only personage whose every utterance is printed in every paper and read by every active-minded citizen. No other person on earth wields such power and influence, and has such responsibility.

AND yet, to choose him, we trust to luck, in the final hours of an exhausted hysterical, heat-crazed convention. The decision is usually made by men who are literally non compos mentis. Unless there is a majority on an early ballot, all their instructions are off and their responsibility to the people has ceased. The majority of them were not elected by the people to begin with. They are an unwieldy, shouting horde, incapable of deliberation en masse. If the choice is really by the delegates, it is an excited stampede, among men whose purses and nerves are exhausted and whose strongest desire is to get home. If it is made by real deliberation, it is done by a few self-chosen bosses, in secret, for motives which commonly have little to do with either the wishes or the interests of the people. Then, when that process is complete, in two conventions, the people decide between its two products. The wonder is that luck treats us so well.

A PRESIDENTIAL preference priors is the obvious escape. In times when there is a real popular choice of individuals, or a real movement which somebody represents, it would work well. At other times, it would be no worse than the present system. It would be more likely to give us the services of our greatest men, on the rare occasions when there are any such available. Even at other times, it would limit the arrogance of those who will "put it over" on us, when they can.

THE truth is that our system lacks "leaders of leadership." A career in Congress does not normally lead toward the Presidency. Ordinarily, it is the accident of conspicuousness which makes one available and the accident of a convention which nominates him. Then it is an accident whether the qualities which, thus brought the Presidential candidate to public view have trained him for the duties of the office. The combination of all these things, as in Herbert Hoover, is the rarest accident of all. And then some politicians say that his qualifications are a disqualification.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

DO UPLIFTERS UPLIFT?

Today I turn again to the picture of the ideal citizen, as I see him, by discussing the ninth of eleven attitudes I think he maintains—a cynical attitude toward uplift.

The impulse back of the idea of uplift is admirable.

It has become an American tradition that men of wealth, men of education, and men of vision have an inescapable obligation to use their wealth, education, and vision for the benefit of their less favored fellows.

It is the ancient conception of noblesse oblige in American dress. There is, I think, an enormous fund of sincerity back of the uplift movements and service slogans of our time.

Those who have wealth, education, and vision honestly want to serve those who have not these things.

But this beautiful ambition is, I fear, leading us into a blind alley.

I suspect that most uplift movements uplift very little.

And the reason is that they begin uplifting too late.

The life of the average man is made desirable or undesirable, happy or unhappy, beautiful or barren, by the conditions under which and the way in which he lives his childhood, gets his education, and makes his living.

Anything else is tacked on; it is not an organic part of his life.

Do we want satisfactory living conditions for the average man? We can do something through an uplift movement to clean up the slums and plan model tenements.

In the long run, however, as I have said so many times, we can do most through the progressive development of American industry to the point where it raises wages, shortens hours, and reduces prices, thus giving the average man leisure in which to develop tastes that will demand good living conditions and means to provide them.

Do we want more beauty in the life of the average man? We can do something by uplift movements in behalf of better architecture, better gardening, and better furniture.

In the long run, however, the average man will be trained to a greater sensitiveness to beauty by the increasing beauty that is being put into kitchen utensils, furnace equipment, radio cabinets, bathroom fixtures, inexpensive automobiles, and the other instruments of daily life.

The line of least resistance for uplift is in and through the process of living and working.

The ideal citizen focuses his fund of good will on the hours of the working day; he does not reserve it for after six in the evening.
